OLD U. S. GUNS TO BE TURNED IN FOR ALLIES

COMPULSORY ARMY HITCH FAVORED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, June 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt applauded a newspaper editorial demanding compulsory military training for the United States today, while his aides joined with Henry Ford in a preliminary move toward possible mass production of warplanes on a gigantic scale.

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt asked congress for specific authority to turn old United States army guns back to manufacturers, a procedure expected to place them quickly, if indirectly, in the hands of beleaguered French and British soldiers. Fifty navy planes are already following such a route to the Allies.

Over 500 Planes Ready

Highly placed persons said tonight that the administration plans to release, all told, morethan 500 army and navy planes. These would include army attack bombers, various other models, and the fifty navy planes already disposed of.

The present plans, it was said, call for turning back to manufacturers a large amount of ordnance material, including 600,000 Lee-Enfield rifles, ammunition and 500 or more 75-millimeter guns of British and French models. The government, it was said, would receive from the manufacturers a $30,000,000 credit on later purchases of new material.

The president's moves to release the military equipment and his apparent interest in compulsory training created an immediate division of sentiment in congress, and much debate was expected, especially if Mr. Roosevelt should propose legislation to draft the sons of thousands of households for military training.

Likes Training Idea

His remark on military service was made in an offhand fashion at his regular Friday press conference. But it came so unhesitatingly in reply to the question which prompted it and was so unequivical that many were drawn inescapably to the conclusion that the chief executive had been studying the possibilities of such a course of action.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked for comment on an editorial appearing today in the New York Times emphatically urging compulsory military training. His answer was that he had read the first paragraph and liked it very much. The paragraph in question follows:

"The time has come when in the interest of self-protection, the American people should at once adopt a national system of universal compulsory military training. We say this as a newspaper which has never believed in the wisdom of such a policy in time of peace. We say it because the logic of events drives us remorselessly to this conclusion."

CAUCUS CALLED FOR STATE GOP

Republican Convention Delegates Confer In Lansing June 14

Lansing, June 7 (AP)—A call went out today to the Michigan delegation to the Republican national convention to meet in caucus here Friday, June 14.

The call followed conferences yesterday and today between National Committeeman James H. Davidson, of Bay City, and Leslie B. Butler, of Lansing, state chairman.

The group is to choose the Michigan member of the national convention's resolutions committee before heading for Philadelphia and the big convention June 24 that will nominate a presidential candidate.

An early caucus was the wish of U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Grand Rapids, one of the leading contenders for the nomination, and John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman, both of whom have expressed a desire that the resolutions committee devote a week in advance of the convention to the drafting of a convention platform.

The Republican meeting here Friday will give the party an opportunity to compete with Democrats in Flint for headlines.

The Democratic state convention, scheduled for Saturday, has scheduled pre-convention activities Friday that include an address by U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, author of the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

Convict Will Take Parole For $7,000

Lansing, June 7 (AP)—The state parole board has a suggestion—from a parolee, of course—that it pay him $7,000 to accept a parole and leave the country.

Ralph Benson, parole supervision director, said Harry F. McClennan, 54-year-old Flint resident who has served 13 years for slaying his mother, wrote the board:

"I will accept $7,000 to leave the country and never enter it again. That isn't a flea bite to what I ought to get."

According to department records, McClennan was sentenced to serve from 41 to 59 years for slaying his mother in 1927. He buried the body secretly 11 miles from Flint, the report said.

Resorter Drowned Near Sturgis, Mich

Sturgis, Mich., June 7 (AP)—State troopers and sheriff's officers dragged Sand Lake at Nottawa, ten miles north of Sturgis, today for the body of Herman Sabrofsky, 65, who disappeared earlier in the day after rowing his boat out into the lake. The alarm was given when Mrs. Sabrofsky noticed the boat and her husband's hat drifting toward the shore. Sabrofsky operated a summer resort and picnic grounds at the lake. He leaves a widow, a son, Curtis, who is on the faculty of Michigan State college, and a sister.

GRAVEL DEALER FREED

Mason, Mich., June 7, (AP)—Clayton Sadler, Williamstown gravel dealer, was free today of charges that he paid a $140 bribe to Gibbons Howlett, former clerk in the Ingham county road commission, to settle a $385 claim against him. Sadler was acquitted by a circuit court jury.

New NLRB Created In House Bill

Washington, June 7 (AP)—By a vote of exactly two to one, the house passed and sent to the senate today a series of Wagner Act amendments to create a new, three-man National Labor Relations Board and make sweeping changes in its present procedure.

The same coalition of Republicans and Democrats which had held the upper hand for three days of preliminary fighting rolled up a 258 to 129 vote for the revisions, despite the fact that all factions agreed that they would wind up in a pigeonhole in the senate.

The amendments were virtually the same as those approved by a majority of the five-man committee headed by Representative Smith (D-Va.) which has been investigating the Wagner Act and the Labor oBard since last December.

Positions Abolished

Besides abolishing the positions now held by Labor Board members, J. Warren Madden, Edwin S. Smith and William M. Leiserson, the Smith amendments would separate the board's present administrative and judicial functions by establishing the position of an administrator. Sponsors said this procedure would leave the new board free to concentrate its attention on judicial functions.

The amendments also would abolish the economics division now headed by David J. Saposs; would permit court review of board decisions in representation cases and would require the board to acknowledge craft unions as bargaining agents if a majority of the members of such unions so desired.

Opposing these propositions at every turn, a minority tried in vain to confine the house amendments to a series of four, approved by the house labor committee and built around the addition of two new members to the three-man board.

But this group was beaten, once on a teller vote of 178 to 111 and on roll call votes of 246 to 137 and 258 to 129.

SEDITION FIGHT FUNDS LACKING

Expansion of Michigan State Police Can't Be Financed

Lansing, June 7. (AP)—Budget Director Gus T. Hartman says the so-called little legislature has no funds to permit a requested expansion of state police forces to combat subversive activities by agents of foreign governments.

Governor Dickinson has assured State Police Commissioner Oscar Olander that he will receive permission to add 100 men or any other number needed in the event of emergency, but has been silent on the source. Hartman said the little legislature has only $40,000 of its funds unpledged, whereas Olander wants $230,000, and that there are no funds against which to draw while a deficit is incurred.

Some sources suggested that a special session of the legislature might be required, or that some way might be found to permit the state police to take on more men through deficit financing.

Olander spoke of "hundreds" of complaints of seditious activity in this state and said his present force has been able only to "scratch the surface" in its investigations.

Canadian Passport Order Not Good For Detroit's Business

Detroit, June 7 (AP)—The Detroit board of commerce protested today that the state department's new passport order for Canadians would adversely affect business here.

In telegrams to Senators Vandenberg and Brown, the board pointed out that the order requiring passports for all Canadians entering Detroit would affect "over 2,000,000 shoppers and tourists who annually patronize Detroit."

Asking the state department to reconsider, the board said "we heartily indorse need for every precaution" but said it felt this could be accomplished "without interrupting amicable business relationships of years' standing."

TWO MICHIGAN PERSONS DEAD IN BAD STORM

PORT HURON CIRCUS TENT COLLAPSES, CAUSES PANIC

(By The Associated Press)

Violent thunderstorms struck parts of Michigan Friday, bringing death to at least two persons, throwing a circus crowd into panic when a tent collapsed, and causing property damage.

Lightning killed a golfer at Jackson early Friday night when that City was paid its second visit by an electrical storm. A Jackson boy swimmer drowned when the first storm accompanied by high wind, struck in the afternoon.

The lightning's victim was 22-year-old Kenneth Knubbe of Detroit. With his bride of seven months, Virginia, and a friend, E. H. Jordan of Jackson, Knubbe was playing on the Sharp park public course.

Motorist Sees Body

Fleeing from heavy rain, the three ran to a tool house. Knubbe left shortly to tend to his open-top automobile. On his way back, he passed between two large oak trees. At that moment, the lightning struck one of the treeas, and Knubbe was killed, apparently instantly.

A motorist saw his body and called for help. Firemen worked over Knubbe in vain with a pulmotor. It was not until after the motorist's discovery that Mrs. Knubbe and Jordan learned of Knubbe's fate.

Knubbe, an employe of the Packard Motor Car Company, formerly lived in Jackson. He was the son of Herman Knubbe of Mishawaka, Ind. His mother, Mrs. Laverna Knubbe, lives in Jackson with another son, Harold.

Motorists Use Lights

The Irish Hills district of southeastern Michigan appeared to bear the brunt of the storm's fury.

Donald Brown, 13, of Jackson, drowned in center lake, near Michigan Center, when the storm first struck that section shortly after noon. He had been swimming with two companions when, almost without warning, a high wind whipped the water of the lake into angry waves.

In Jackson, the temperature dropped from 90 to 66 degrees in 25 minutes after the storm struck. The Consumers Power Company reported rainfall during the same 25-minute period measured .63 of an inch, although a rain gauge at the Municipal sewage disposal plant indicated 1.5 inches.

Municipal airport officials reported that their instruments had recorded a 60-mile-an-hour wind. Clouds were so dense motorists were compelled to use their headlights at mid-day.

Pole Lines Down

Lightning struck the Glick Iron and Metal Co.'s paper warehouse in Jackson and a home in Michigan Center, causing fires that resulted in damage estimated at several thousand dollars.

The Michigan Bell Telephone company reported that falling trees had disrupted service on many of their circuits in the Jackson area.

Power and telephone lines also were down in the vicinity of Cold-

NEBRASKA TOWN WATER COVERED

Business District and 100 Homes Flooded In Wauneta

Wauneta, Neb., June 7. (AP)—More than 100 homes and the business district of this southwest Nebraska town were under water tonight as it felt the full force of flood waters surging down the Frenchman Creek.

It was the hardest hit town thus far in the Republican river valley area, where the river ran bank full, as its rain-swollen tributaries poured into it, leaving flooded towns and crumbling dams in their wake.

The light and water plant was inundated, cutting off electric power and endangering the city drinking water source. Some homes were moved off their foundations, and extensive damage occurred to business house stocks.

Firemen worked all night evacuating residents in the flooded section, where some of the newest and finest homes in Wauneta have been built. Many residents were carried from their homes.

The water filled basements and covered the first story of homes as high as four feet. The town's hospital was inundated, and an emergency hospital was set up on higher ground.

Tax Bill To Raise Over Billion Yearly Drafted

Washington June 7 (AP)—A new tax bill, designed to raise $1,006,000,000 a year for national defense by digging deeped than ever before into the average American's pocket, won tentative approval today of a house tax subcommittee.

The new taxes would be earmarked to liquidate in the next five years a $4,000,000,000 increase in the public debt limit—from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000—which the bill would authorize in order to meet defense appropriations being made at this session. President Roosevelt already has requested approximately $4,600,000,000 for defense.

The bill would bring approximately 2,050,000 additional persons within reach of the income tax collector by reducing exemptions to the lowest level since the income tax law was enacted. The basic exemption for married couples would be cut from $2,500 to $2,000 and for single persons from $1,000 to $800.

In addition, the measure would impose a supertax of ten per cent of the normal tax for the next five years; increase surtax rates on the income brackets between $6,000 and $100,000 and boost corporation income taxes by one per cent of taxable income.

Persons not affected by the income tax increases will be reached for part of the defense costs through increases of 10 per cent or more which the bill would impose on virtually all existing excise tax levies, such as the tax on gasoline. The latter is tentatively scheduled to go up a half cent from the present one cent levy.

Chairman Cooper (D-Tenn), who said the bill was unanimously approved by his subcommittee, told newsmen that the lowering of income tax exemptions was intended to be permanent law, as was the imposition of the higher surtaxes.

All the increases would apply to 1940 incomes on which taxes will be due next March 15.

The 10 per cent supertax would apply, however, only to the five years beginning with 1940.

CHURCH BLAMED IN CRIME WAVE

Governor Dickinson Says We Must Go Back to Sunday School

Traverse City, Mich., June 7 (AP)—Gov. Luren D. Dickinson blamed the church today for "not fulfilling its duties in starting the lives of young people properly."

"As laymen and ministers," he told the 105th Michigan Methodist Conference here, "we must tackle our job and turn back to the Sunday school, the prayer meeting and the family circle."

He attributed crime to a lack of church attendance and said the only way to lessen it was to increase church congregations.

Declaring he was speaking as a "Methodist and not as governor," Dickinson said he relied on "God Almighty" in his work as chief executive.

The governor reiterated his willingness to hear all critics of his administration if they would "talk matters openly" with him at Lansing.

Archie McCrea, editor of the Muskegon Chronicle, was elected lay leader of the conference for the ensuing year.

Bishop Edgar Blake, who retires this year, was honored at a banquet tonight at which Col. M. Thomas Tchou, former secretary to Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, was principal speaker.

Soo Locks Traffic Doubles Last Year

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 7 (AP)—A report on month of May traffic through the Sault locks, made public today, indicated a war stimulation on Great Lakes shipping.

A total of 12,250,305 tons of freight, or twice the figure of May, 1939, was locked through during last month. The only higher figure was the 14,109,504 during, May, 1937.

Last month's shipments included 7,326,571 tons of iron ore, double the total of May last year.

Old Goodrich Boat Line Operator Dies

Grand Haven, Mich., June 7, (AP)—Funeral services will be held here Sunday for Nathaniel Robbins, 75, operator of the former Goodrich and Wisconsin and Michigan steamship lines on Lake Michigan. Robbins died last night after an illness of five days.

He was born in St. Joseph but had lived in Grand Haven most of his life.

Two sons, Hunter Robbins of Spring Lake, and Nathaniel Robbins, Jr., of Holland, survive.

Duce Halts His Ships; Armies Set

Rome, June 7 (AP)—Italy made the world aware tonight that her hour of decision is near by holding her ships at a world standstill and by making her armies ready.

Italians heard without surprise the widespread reports abroad that the scheduled sailings of all Italian merchant ships had been cancelled and that those in foreign waters had been ordered to take cover in neutral harbors.

Veteran in Command

While there was no official confirmation here of these reports, a reliable source said the great Italian liner Rex would not sail on June 12, despite the fact that the line still accepted reservations.

Other departures likewise were reported secretly called off.

Armament was speeded. The Italian air force was granted $380,000,000 for its expanded program in the next three years. The navy got $80,000,000 for armament aboard and ashore.

A 74-year-old whiskered veteran of many a tough colonial campaign, Marshal Emilio Debono, was put in command of Italy's southern armies—the forces which would be expected to do much of the fighting upon Italy's entrance into the war.

Reynaud "Too Late"

Military experts believed that Marshal Debono's new command included the troops of Libya—from which some Fascists have openly predicted a campaign against Egypt in an effort to capture the Suez canal, an essential to the maintenance of the British lifeline.

Among the day's significant developments was the fact that foreign circles were told that diplomatic relations between Italy and Russia—which has understandings with Germany—were being improved.

Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso is expected to return to Moscow, which he left several months ago after Josef Stalin recalled the new Soviet Ambassador Nicolai Gorelchin from Rome because of hostile demonstrations over the Russian invasion of Finland. Gorelchin's return to Rome shortly was predicted.

Meanwhile, the declaration of Premier Paul Reynaud of France that—as the Italian press put it—the democracies had "made mistakes," was dismissed by the authorities with the comment:

"Too late!"

Handy Man Wins Suit On Promissory Note of Industrialist

Providence, R. I., June 7. (AP)—Hushed gasps of amazement arose in a sparsely filled courtroom late today as a superior court jury returned a verdict of $1,000,000 and $33,338.21 interest for Dutee W. Flint in his promissory note suit against the estate of Samuel M. Nicholson, wealthy industrialist.

Flint, whose suit for $1,000,000 has been heard for the past several weeks, claimed the late Col. Nicholson had given him a promissory note for that amount, "payable after death" in return for "invaluable services" he had rendered the aged man.

William H. Edwards, member of counsel for the Nicholson estate, immediately announced that the defense would file a motion for a new trial.

Trial of the million-dollar suit started last April 23 with Flint testifying he had lost a $10,000,000 motor car business in the 1929 crash and that Col. Nicholson had promised to "make him a millionaire again" in return for "virtual enslavement" to the head of the Nicholson File company.

He described his activities as valet and butler, "man Friday" and travel agent, backgammon opponent and business mentor to the aged man in return for which Col. Nicholson handed him the million-dollar note, payable after death.

During the lengthy proceedings, defense counsel introduced witnesses who testified the colonel was of unsound mind at the time the note was signed in October, 1937, and, in the closing argument, contended it had been obtained by fraud.

Fire At Kalamazoo Destroys 300,000 Gallons Of Wine

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 7, (AP)—Fire swept the interior of the Houppert Winery at Lawton today, leaving only the walls of the three-story brick and frame structure standing and destroying approximately 300,000 gallons of wine.

William C. Houppert, the owner, estimated his loss at 150,000 to $250,000. He said he believed another 300,000 gallons of wine safe in casks buried beneath the ruins and stored in a fireproof building nearby.

Most of the 30-odd employes of the winery were at lunch when the blaze started. Three men in the plant escaped injury.

Fire departments from Kalamazoo, Paw Paw and Mattawan sent aid. In all, nearly 100 firemen and volunteers fought the blaze.

The cause of the fire was unknown.

State Drug Store Law Is Challenged

Lansing, June 7 (AP)—A suit instituted in the Ingham county circuit court by Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc., today challenges constitutionality of a state law requiring that 25 percent of the stock of a corporation operating a drug store be vested in a registered pharmacist.

A temporary order by Judge Leland W. Carr, returnable June 22, compels the state board of pharmacy to show cause why the law should not be held invalid.

The suit deals specifically with operation of a drug department in the company's retail store in Detroit.

Canada Will Build Tanks For England

Ottawa, June 7 (AP)—Construction of 300 tanks for the Allies will start in Canada tomorrow, the director of public information announced tonight.

The British government has accepted an offer by the Canadian government to build the tanks "of a type now in use."

HITLER'S MEN THROWN INTO FACE OF GUNS

ALLIES FALL BACK, BUT HOLD MAIN DEFENSES

(By The Associated Press)

Allied soldiers poured out a withering fire as they clung fast to their main defense positions on the 125-mile Aisne-Somme front last (Friday) night after advance forces had fallen back, under orders, from the crushing German drive into France.

While the fighting reddened the sky over the continent, England's third night of air raids was spiced with a shower of machine-gun bullets which a Nazi flier chattered into roofs and buildings at a southeast port not otherwise identified. Residents huddled in shelters and cellars for 45 minutes and escaped the deadly spray.

Nazis "Wiped Out"

A German bomber crashed in East Suffolk and one prisoner was reported taken. Air raid alarms shrieked in eight of England's shires.

Generalissimo Maxine Weygand wrote a communique in his own hand to make it clear his advance units backed up in a strategic movement to meet a typical Nazi double-flanking push.

East of Soissons, 60 miles from Paris, German advance forces hurled themselves across the Aisne river only to be "wiped out," said the French high command.

Heedless of terrific losses, Nazi attackers pressed their attack all along the front in the third night of the bloody battle of France.

The French explained the advance units fell back after "fulfilling their mission" against enemy tanks and infantry. Defenders were described as falling back under orders.

French Aviators Active

During the third day of the great battle the French said their aviation carried out "incessant" attacks, dropping 100 tons of bombs on "armored machines, convoys and communication lines."

German armies, pounding violently at the center of the tough French defenses of the Somme-Aisne front, were trying to make the broad valley of the Oise river a Nazi highway to Paris.

The later attack came north of Soissons.

Another came on the Aisne river, east and north of Soissons, which is the French right flank in that sector.

Nazi Panzer units broke into the French lines in the west toward the Upper Bresle river, but there they met with a hot fire

Telephone Company May Refuse Service For Unlawful Uses

Lansing, June 7, (AP)—The state public service commission today authorized the Michigan Bell Telephone company to refuse telephone service to subscribers using the service for illegal purposes.

The order permits the company, upon 72 hours notice, to suspend service upon request of any court of record, U. S. attorney or the state attorney general when there is reason to believe telephones are being used for criminal purposes. Previously, a specific court order had been necessary.

Chairman John J. O'Hara said the company had asked for the authority following a gambling investigation in Wayne county.

Inspectors Watch For Cherry Flies

Lansing, June 7. (AP) — The state department of agriculture's "Paul Revere" fruit fly service will go into action Monday in west Michigan cherry growing areas. The first of 20 inspectors will go into the field to watch cherry fruit fly traps. When the first fly is caught in southwestern Michigan the alarm will be spread progressively to other regions that the time has arrived for the application of spray.

Italy Promises She Won't Attack Egypt

Alexandria, Egypt, June 7, (AP)—The Arabic newspaper Al Bassir said today Italy has promised Egypt that her frontiers would be respected if Italy joins Germany against the Allies.

Premier Mussolini has given Egyptian Premier Aly Maher Pasha fresh assurances, the newspaper said, that Italy would not attack Egypt.

Hermansville Boy Will Attend Boys' State at Lansing

James Laundree ,a senior in the Meyer township high school will represent Hermansville at the Wolverine Boys' State to be held on the campus of Michigan State college in East Lansing on June 20-28. This is the third annual boys' state but this is the first year the Leo Floriana post of Hermansville has sent a boy to the meeting.

James graduated this June and while in high school was very active. He was a member of the band and orchestra and was the leader of the high school jazz band which played for student dances. He also was business manager of the school paper.

More than 900 boys from every county in the state will be represented at the Boys' State and they will conduct affairs of the mythical forty-ninth state, electing all their own officers. Besides the training in citizenship and government the Boys' State program includes tours of Michigan State college campus, Lansing industrial plants, and the state capitol. It gives the boys a good chance to put into practice some of the principles of government that they have learned in their classes.

MORE CUTS SET IN WPA ROLLS

2,245 To Be Dropped In U.P.—Hope for Only Small Cut Here

New cuts in WPA rolls totaling 2,245 workers, are scheduled throughout the Upper Peninsula by June 26, according to announcement made at the First WPA district office at Marquette. The order specifies that the 13,445 WPA workers in the Upper Peninsula shall be cut to 11,200.

The cut will be accomplished as painlessly as possible by gradual weekly reductions, according to the announcement. By next Wednesday, June 12, the rolls will be down to 12,200; by June 19, to 11,700, and the last 500 will be dropped by June 26.

Confer in Lansing

What cut will be made here was not indicated and local officials had no information on the matter. The fact that the cuts were announced to be made according to clients' needs was considered encouraging, since Delta county has been hard pressed to care for its 1,206 cases and at present is operating on a budget reduced to one-fourth of normal.

John E. McCarthy, county WPA administrator, was in Lansing yesterday with other county representatives, conferring with regard to the new year's appropriations, to become effective July 1.

An encouraging note is that the U. P. load of 11,200 probably will remain stable through July, August and September. A slight increase is anticipated next October and an additional boost in November.

14,000 Cut In State

In the state 14,000 WPA workers will be dropped from the rolls this month. Half of the total reduction will be made in Wayne county. The present state load is 77,000. Progressive reductions on projects in every section of the state will be made until the total is down to 63,000 by July 1.

Future employment loads in the peninsula depend on provisions of the new WPA appropriations bill now pending in congress.

Houghton Leads With 2,248

Houghton county, with 2,248, has the greatest number of workers on WPA rolls at present. Dickinson's 1,970 is second, and Gogebic, with 1,513, has the third heaviest load. Iron county has 1,390 and Marquette county is fifth with 1,260.

The employment count in the peninsula follows:

Alger, 295; Baraga, 485; Chippewa, 573; Delta, 1,206; Dickinson, 1,970; Gogebic, 1,513; Houghton, 2,248; Iron, 1,390; Keweenaw, 362; Luce, 136; Mackinac, 285; Marquette, 1,260; Menominee, 911; Ontonagon, 449; and Schoolcraft, 362. Total, 13,445.

Machiavelli,whose name now describes a type of politics, told critics that if he taught princes to be tyrants, he also taught the people to destroy tyrants.

SEWAGE ENGINE MAKES $1,296

Six Months Report of Operations Made By Norgaard

The 25 kilowatt generator installed six months ago at the Escanaba sewage disposal plant has made a net profit of $1,296.87, according to a report prepared by John T. Norgaard, plant superintendent, and presented for the information of the city council.

Total cost of installation was $4,471.21, the report says. In preparing the operation summary, the depreciation cost, figured for six months and on a ten year basis for total depreciation, was $279.45. Operating costs, including lubrication, maintenance and operating labor was set at $95.68, for a total of $375.13.

Sold to City

The equipment produced 104,500 kilowatt hours of electricity, which at a rate of 1.6 cents per pilowatt hour was valued at $1,672. The plant itself used most of the power, but having it generated at the plant saved the cost of purchasing it from the city at the 1.6 cents rate.

Besides generating power for the plant's use, the equipment has produced an average of 2,500 kilowatt hours of electricity monthly, which has been sold to the city at one cent per kilowatt hour.

The net profit to the city has been $669.87, based on the one cent per kilowatt hour rate, which is the purchase price of power to the city utility. Power in excess of the sewage treatment department requirements on an annual basis will be credited at this price.

210,000 KWH Per Year

The unit which is run by gas created naturally in the sewage treatment, consists chiefly of a 471 cubic inch engine driving a 25 kilowatt synchronous generator at 900 revolutions per minute. The generator is directly connected to the municipal electric utility lines. The generator load is thus independent of the plant power requirements.

The unit is equipped with a regulator that keeps constant equilibrium by adjusting the throttle to the pressure of the gas. This is thought to be the first application of such a regulator to a gas engine, Mr. Norgaard's report says. The gas engine is used for generating electric energy.

At the present rate the engine will produce about 210,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per year. Plant and pumping station requirements are about 200,000 kilowatt hours, leaving an annual excess of approximately 10,000 hours.

Material included in the report will be used in an account of the plant operation, considered unique in municipal operations, for publication in a magazine of city government.

Donald Campbell Named Art Editor

The appointment was made a fortnight ago, and officially announced today by Adrian Smith, retiring editor-in-chief. Smith will be succeeded by John Ruhl of Houghton. Campbell is enrolled in the mechanical engineering department.

Rapid River Girls Have Softball Team

Rapid River, June 7—A girls' softball team has been organized at Rapid River by the recreational department under the direction of Bob Cavill.

Girls wishing to play in the league should report for practice on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

The boys defeated Schaffer, 34-0, in a hard ball game here this week.

Escanaba Youths Get Degree at Tech

Both the Escanaba youths are members of the R.O.T.C., Van Effen having earned the rank of Captain and Shanahan that of First Lieutenant.

Board Of Review Nears End Of Job

Members of the Escanaba Board of Review expected to inspect about 100 properties today to make valuation appraisals as the board nears the finish of its annual task of valuating all property in the city.

Indications were that the job will be finished early next week, when the total valuation and the tax rate necessary to raise $115,000 will be announced, after which tax bills will be computed.

Sheriff's Office Gives 183 Permits

The sheriff's office license bureau issued 161 drivers' licenses and 22 chauffeurs' licenses during May, according to Undersheriff John Frederickson, who with Paul Creten is in charge of licensing. This is a record month's issue this year for drivers' licenses.

Sixteen licenses were issued to beginners, 26 to women and 119 to men.

LIQUIDATION EXPECTED

Crystal Falls—Stockholders will pass early next week on a proposal to liquidate the Alpha bank. As there are more than sufficient assets to meet all obligations to depositors and to pay off preferred stockholders in full, the liquidation would be voluntary.

Common shareholders, faced with the alternative of supplying additional capital or liquidating, are said to favor liquidation, under which they would, it is said, receive about sixty per cent of their investment. If the plan is approved by the shareholders, a liquidator will be appointed to close up the bank's affairs as soon as possible.

The First National, of Crystal Falls, would take over approximately $130,000 of acceptance loans of the Alpha bank. It will be the only bank on the east side. William Veeser, Alpha cashier, will, it is said, become assistant cashier of the First National, succeeding Edward Hietala, of Chassell, who has been employed here for several months in a temporary capacity.

The Perkins contribution brought the county's total to $614.75, Treasurer William Warmington said yesterday.

Chairman Deo will announce the chairman of the war relief drive early next week.

Derelict Scow Is Resued from Boat Lanes In Bay Here

A large scow that had been floating since Thursday in Little Bay De Noc, was finally pulled into the Escanaba yacht harbor about noon yesterday and out of the way of incoming ore boats or other bay navigation.

The rescue was made by the city tug and Capt. Dan Garrett of the coast guard station here, with helpers after a report had come yesterday morning from the ore docks that the huge craft, visible no more than a foot above the water, was a menace to ore boats.

The derelict, measuring about 35 by 75 feet, and sinking perhaps four feet under water, had broken from a mooring in the Escanaba river mouth, it was reported. It was originally used by a concern wrecking old ore docks and later had been the property of a local lumber company, which has not used it recently, city officials reported.

The rescue was begun about 9 a. m. yesterday and the scow was moored in the yacht harbor near the marine boat track shortly before noon.

FINDS DATED STONE

Urge Aid to Allies

THE giving of all possible aid to the Allies, short of our actual participation in the war, is being urged by Republican and Democratic leaders alike.

Col. Frank Knox, Republican vice presidential candidate in 1936, believes that the United States should send a generous supply of her airplanes and tanks to France at once. Paul V. McNutt, social security administrator, made a similar proposal in a talk at the convention of the Yankee Division Veterans' association.

The sentiments of these leaders are concurred in by an increasing number of the rank and file of American citizens. It is a good example how public opinion will change with the development of new situations.

First, as a peace-loving people we were convinced that an effective way to prevent war would be to stop the traffic in arms, and we adhered to this policy to some degree during the Ethiopian and Spanish conflicts. When Hitler launched his horrifying blitzkriegs, public opinion quickly changed to approval of a cash and carry policy, which favored the Allies because of their mastery of the seas. Now that it appears that a Nazi victory over France and Great Britain is quite possible, American public opinion is strong for an extensive preparedness program for defending our shores from invasion.

At the same time, there is a growing tendency to take the more realistic view of sending planes, tanks and other equipment so as to stop the Nazi threat on European soil. America is beginning to feel that American freedom and American security are bound up with an Allied success. We are realizing that we actually condone inhumane aggressions upon weaker nations when we maintain a strict isolationist policy. We do not have to send soldiers across the pond to fight in European wars, but we can make our influence felt as a world power by making available our vast resources to the Allies, who are after all fighting for our cause as much as for their own.

Bishop Not Running

WITH the announcement by George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, that he will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman the political situation in the Twelfth district is more discernible.

Very likely, the candidates after the September primary will be John Bennett of Ontonagon on the Republican ticket and Rep. Frank Hook again seeking reelection on the Democratic. Bennett made a good run against Hook in 1938, and it is felt with the continued drift back to Republicanism in the Twelfth district he will have a chance of defeating the Democratic incumbent this year.

Earlier in the year, there were signs that Andrew Asikainen of Gwinn, chairman of the Upper Peninsula Republican clubs, might furnish Bennett with a contest, but it is quite likely that he would not get anywhere. Republicans of the district do not take Asikainen very seriously, and are inclined to view Bennett as the logical candidate.

Recent developments will tend to weaken Rep. Hook's influence in the Twelfth district. It will be recalled that he suffered considerable embarrassment when his attack upon Chairman Dies fizzled, and the "fifth column" hysteria that has developed of late quite naturally would work to Hook's disadvantage. The Twelfth district appears to be due for a change.

Cleanup Under Way

EDITORIAL comment in Michigan newspapers indicates approval of the manner in which Herbert J. Rushton of Escanaba has started to clean up the sales tax mess in Wayne county.

The disclosure of irregularities in Wayne county was brought about by the larger department stores, which have been paying the sales taxes to the state while they have been aware that others were escaping the obligation. Many merchants in Detroit, it was charged, were collecting the three per cent levy from customers and were using the money for their own purposes. Apparently, this is not a new situation, but something that has existed ever since the sales tax law was put into effect in 1933.

Mr. Rushton has attacked the problem with his characteristic vigor. He discharged the chief of the Detroit branch office, and put in his place Henry C. Schroeder, who has been supervisor of the field representatives. He has announced that he will oppose tax cancellations in the future. Other drastic steps to bring order out of the sales tax chaos are anticipated.

Building Also for Peace

THE United States has committed itself to a vast program of building to meet any war that may come. But it is not neglecting to build also for peace.

During the first three months of this year just shoft of 100,000 new housing units in non-farm areas were completed. Only about 10 per cent were built under the USHA's low-rent program. That is a 5 per cent increase over last year, and of the total, 75,000 were one-family dwellings.

Thus, while the whole of northern Europe crumbles, and the people's homes are smashed to dust, the United States is still fortunate enough to be able to build.

Not Unexpected

THE Osborne association has completed its survey of Michigan prison administration, and the report of its findings of what is wrong in this state will cause no surprise.

The Osborne association's investigators found that politicians have been allowed to run the prisons, dictating the choice of employes from the warden down. Obviously, it is impossible to secure effective prison management when a change of personnel is made with each change of administration.

We have a state police department, whose personnel is selected because of ability and not because of politics. The troopers are doing a good job of apprehending criminals, but their efforts are of little avail because they must turn these lawbreakers over to the prisons, which because of politics are not doing all that should be expected from them.

Other Editors' Comments

SILLY RUMORS HERE
(Marinette Eagle-Star)

The hysteria over fifth column activities has hit Marinette, judging by the numerous unfounded rumors that have been in circulation for weeks. It is high time for residents of Marinette to be on their guard against the anti-alien complex that is developing.

To set folks at rest, no aliens have been arrested in Marinette during the weeks that rumors have been afloat. It is not true that 17 G-men or even one or two of them have made Marinette their headquarters for a period, bent on checking the activities of persons who lack the qualifications for citizenship. It is not true that plots have been uncovered here and that wholesale arrests may be made momentarily.

In this connection, a paragraph from an editorial in Editor and Publisher is timely. It warns us:

"If there is one thing that this country doesn't need, it is a dose of the same bigotry and persecution that has turned Europe into a hot corner of Hell for many millions. We don't need hysteria. We don't need laws which will curtail the essential liberties of all (and they will, once they are started) to essure the trapping of a few rats. We have all the laws that we need for protection. We have police agencies which has shown themselves fully competent to deal with the halfwitted 'fifth column' and 'Trojan horse' conspiracies to date. We need no Ogpu, no Gestapo, and most certainly, we need no army of amateur spy-chasers and witch-hunters."

Let's settle down and forget all these rumors. There is no need for hunting witches and chasing spies in Marinette anymore than in the rest of the country. We have been getting altogether too hysterical over the war situation. We have reached the stage where, unless this hysteria ceases, we may persecute innocent persons. Marinette wants no part of such a program.

(Sault Ste. Marie News)

Every citizen of Sault Ste. Marie has a right to ask for a fair deal and it is the duty of the City Commission to grant a fair deal to the people of the city in all its acts. Last night the resolution asking for applications for the city managership to replace Manager Henry Sherman, who has given more than 20 years of the best part of his life to this city's government, serving faithfully and well, to his own great credit and the credit of Sault Ste. Marie, is rank injustice.

Sherman is honest. Is that why he has been told he is through?

Sherman is conscientious, trying to run the business of the city, and succeeding, as he would his own. Is that why there is an effort to fire him?

Sherman is an able engineer who stands high throughout the country as a city manager. Is that why his valuable services should be lost to the city?

It is as clear as day that petty politics is practically the sole reason why Mayor Adams and Commissioners Troyer and O'Connor have taken this step. Is this their idea of a fair deal?

The blow has fallen upon the head of Sault Ste. Marie.

The politicians have won the first skirmish in a battle with those citizens who want the city government run in a business-like manner, outside the pale of ward-heeling.

The blow at Manager Sherman is more than personal. It is an iron heel pressed down upon the neck of good government by a mayor who admits that the efficiency of the manager never has been questioned; by two commissioners who are misrepresenting labor in this act.

Citizens have great cause to arise in their anger at this smashing blow at governmental honesty. The spirit of the merit system is being disregarded as is shown by referring to the statement of John Huss, of the Municipal League that no man should be discharged for reasons of religion, politics or race and only for insubordination or incompetence.

Sherman is a symbol of the type of municipal control that the city should have. When he is struck down in his good work, the blow falls on all of us who love the city and want it free of graft or any kind of rottenness.

Today is the time to start on a move to oust politics from the city hall.

It is in the crucible of greatest stress and greatest danger that the true mettle of a general of armies, chairman of a business corporation, or the mayor of a city is tested.

Such a test we believe faces the mayor of our city now.

Because it is a time of stress and danger, we as citizens feel free to speak frankly and openly.

We feel it our duty to point out to Mayor Adams that his decision and his decision alone will determine whether the city is to continue to have capable nonpartisan management.

We feel that his decision and his decision alone will determine whether the voters of the Sault will continue to hold him in high esteem and affection, or whether they will brand him a cheap politician and a faithless leader answerable only to a pressure group.

We feel that his decision and his decision alone will determine whether he is sincere in true merit system, or whether he is using it as a cloak.

If Mayor Adams has the courage that the voters gave him credit for he will retain Manager Sherman; if he listens to disgruntled self-seekers, he will have shown weakness and will have betrayed the confidence and love and respect of the thousands of Sault citizens who have looked up to him and conferred upon him their highest honor.

There is no other issue involved.

EDUCATION AND DISHES
(Kansas City Star)

No little tittering was provoked in academic circles some years ago when a student in one institution turned out a doctor's thesis on the subject of dishwashing. The defense was and is that a college education ought to have an element of practical value in it.

On that same daring theory, the Massachusetts State College experiment station is off with a series of tests which will, it is hoped, "evolve a new technique of washing dishes." The glassware, silver and dishes washed by student helpers in fraternity and sorority houses will be examined by a bacteriologist to see whether the work has been done well enough to prevent transmission of disease organisms, and there will be still other tests from the standpoint of efficiency.

All this may have the ring of progress. But if the Massachusetts institution or any other desires to make a lasting contribution to the human race, it will devise some method of cleaning dishes without washing them.

Politics is defined as the science of government, but it takes a seance to figure out the next moves of the game.

London—If Mussolini takes Italy into the war, there is a big rod in pickle for him, and its name is the French navy.

So much is printed about the strength of the British navy and the French army that the ordinary reader is likely to forget that the French also have a formidable navy. In fact, it is fourth in the world, exceeded only by the American, British, and Japanese fleets.

On paper the fleets of France and Italy seem nearly equal: 8 French battleships against 6 Italian; 7 heavy French cruisers against 7; 12 French light cruisers against 15; 63 French destroyers against 62; 80 French submarines against 87.

—FRENCH EMPHASIZE SPEED, GUN POWER—

But there is something more to it than mere numbers. There is the matter of speed and gun power.

Two of the finest vessels afloat are in the French navy—the battleships Dunkerque and Strasbourg. They were completed in 1937 and 1938, respectively, and were the French answer to the much-vaunted Nazi pocket battleships. They were created to outrun and outgun those celebrated ships. They are each of 26,500 tons and mount eight 13-inch guns and 16 5.1-inch guns. Their turbine engines have a total of 100,000 horsepower and propel the vessels at 30 knots per hour.

Moreover, the French have just added a new battleship to their forces—the Richelieu—and before the end of the year hope to add her sister vessel, the Jean Bart.

Next year two more of the same class, the Clemenceau and the Gascogne, will probably be ready. These vessels are 35,000 tons each. They will be armed with eight 15-inch guns and 15 six-inch guns.

M. Campinchi, French minister of marine, has said that the number of vessels completing or under construction is well over 100, including two 18,000-ton aircraft carriers, three 8000-ton cruisers, 29 destroyers and torpedo boats and 23 submarines.

The new French destroyers already in service are among the most formidable ever built. They all approach 3000 tons and carry eight 5.5-inch guns. One of them recently attained a speed of 45 knots per hour, the highest ever reached by a boat of this class.

—20-MILE RANGE FOR BIG GUNS—

The French have always been famous for their artillery. The 13-inch guns on the Dunkerque and Strasbourg have a range of about 20 miles and can fire three 1200-pound shells every minute. The 5.1-inch guns on these ships have a range of 11,000 yards and can be used either against enemy ships or airplanes. The newer destroyers, armed with the 5.5-inch guns, have extraordinary fire power for such small ships. These guns are claimed to have a range of 25,000 yards and can fire 16 rounds per minute.

Like the British navy, the French has already done an enormous amount of war work. It has escorted the transport of many army divisions from the African empire without the loss of a single French soldier. Also French soldiers have been sent from the mother country to various strategic points in the French empire. French war vessels have shared with the British in the job of guarding British troopships across the English Channel.

Members o fthe board of public works met last night and informally discussed the schedule of rates for lights, gas and water that will be proposed to members of the city council to be made effective in this city for the coming year. The new schedule will be submitted at the next meeting. While no definite announcement has been made, it is understood that flat rates for water service will be nearly doubled, that flat rate customers may be forced into the meter water using class. It is also probable that a substantial increase in the gas rate and a slight increase in the electric rate will be asked.

Hollywood Column

BY PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Hollywood—Ever since Shirley Temple packed up her dolls, picture books and $300,000 bonus check and trudged out of 20th-Fox, agents and mamas have been clamoring at the studio gate with a frilled assortment of substitute Wonder Tots and Miracle Mop-pets, most of them made up to look as much as possible like the original.

But the company wasn't having any, thank you. It went out and hired Ann Todd from under the noses of the Warner brothers. Darryl Zanuck and his aides didn't want anyone who looked like Shirley. Ann has dark brown eyes and long, straight auburn hair. She can sing a little, but doesn't dance. She is acknowledged by all Hollywood as a first-rate actress.

The studio isn't making any announcements or claims for its Temple successor. Story properties which were bought or created for Shirley are being studied as vehicles for Ann Todd, but it isn't likely that they'll ever be identified as yarns from the Temple shelf.

They'll probably be changed, anyway, with dramatic values built up to fit the more intense, emotional youngster who, not quite 8, seems a good deal better poised than the bland and innocent Shirley was at 12.

PARENTS NOT INTERESTED IN MOVIES AT FIRST

There is evidence that 20th-Fox is planning a long-range build-up of its new actress because it's starting out now to establish her age as 6. Her mother, Mrs. A. U. Mayfield, says her daughter will be 8 in August.

Ann Mayfield was 5 when her parents first brought her here from Denver to visit a flock of relatives. Everyone seem to thing she ought to be in movies, but the Mayfields weren't much interested then. They allowed her to be registered at Central Casting, but no jobs had turned up when they returned to Denver.

Two years ago, illness forced the father to sell his weekly newspaper, and in the space of a few weeks the family had come back to Hollywood and Ann had been launched impressively in movies after having been noticed in a church play. George Cukor chose her from 27 youngsters tested for the part of Herbert Marshall's daughter in "Zaza."

Since then she has had more experience than the average actress of any age. She did "Zero Hour" at Republic, "Stranger Than Desire" at Metro, "Little Orvie" at RKO. Twentieth-Fox tested her for "Swanee River" (too large), for "Grapes of Wrath" (too small) and for a secondary role in "The Bluebird" (just right). But it didn't put her under contract then.

As credit is the measure of the strength of a business, so is it the gauge of a nation's strength.
—Henry H. Heimann, to the First International Credit Congress.

No old defense is so strong that it requiries no further strengthening and no attack is so unlikely or so impossible that it may be ignored.
—President Roosevelt.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—Secret negotiations are now in progress to break the alliance between Stalin and Hitler, bringing Russia into closer relations — perhaps even a semi-alliance with Great Britain.

No. 1 secret negotiator is Edward Benes, ex-President of Czechoslovakia, always a close friend of Russia. He is now in Moscow, having been sent there by the British Government to see what he could patch up on their behalf.

No. 2 negotiator is Sir Stafford Cripps, and his trip to Moscow is not secret. However, the circumstances by which he happened to make the trip are secret, and most significant.

First, it is important to note that Sir Stafford Cripps, although one of the wealthiest lawyers in England, is definitely left-wing, much further left than the British Labor Party, and was a vigorous critic of the Chamberlain clique still important in the British Government.

However, he is now an official Ambassador representing that Government. This in itself indicates how anxious the British are to patch up friendship with Russia.

Sir Stafford got into this new and, for him, strange role as a result of a trip last winter to Chungking, China. There the Soviet Government took him by plane to Moscow, where he talked with Foreign Minister Molotoff. The talk was most carefully prepared. Cripps wrote out a series of questions in advance, and Molotoff answered them.

One of the questions was, "Under what conditions would you agree to collaborate with the Allies?" Molotoff's answer, although not definite, was friendly enough to be encouraging.

—HIGH-HAT EMBASSY—

One point which Sir Stafford learned from Molotoff was that the British Embassy in Moscow was so hostile that no one from it had had any contact with the Russian Foreign Office for two months.

Sir Stafford considered his interview so promising that he asked the British Embassy to cable it to British Foreign Minister Lord Halifax in code. But the Embassy refused. So Cripps flew back to Chungking and cabled Halifax from there, adding that he would be glad to fly back to Singapore if the British Government wanted any oral explanations.

However, Cripps did not get even an acknowledgment from Halifax for weeks.

This was last winter. Meanwhile the British began to suffer serious reverses in Norway and the Chamberlain policy began to change. Then Cripps finally was called in and asked to go to Russia on a special mission.

This he agreed to do. But when he got as far as Greece, the Russians refused to accept him unless he came as a full-fledged ambassador.

For a left-wing labor leader to represent the Conservative British Government as an ambassador is unique in British history. However, Halifax yielded.

What will come out of Ambassador Cripp's visit remains to be seen, but two significant items were published recently in the official Soviet newspaper Izvestia. One praised the conduct of the Allied armies in France. The other pointed out that the Nazis might not win the war so easily, since the Allies had big American resources behind them.

Note—Obviously Uncle Joe Stalin remembers the page in "Mein Kampf" in which Hitler plans the conquest of the lush plains of southern Russia.

—FARLEY QUITS—

Jim Farley hasn't announced it yet, but apparently he has thrown up the sponge on opposing a third term.

William Burke, Massachusetts Democratic State Chairman, has confided to friends that he received a personal letter from Farley containing authority to release the delegation "if the President's name is presented to the convention." Since this is certain to happen, Jim's letter means he will not fight a third term nomination.

This is a complete change of attitude. Privately, Jim has talked about a last-ditch fight against Roosevelt, claimed a third term would be "bad" for the country and the Party. This conviction, he said, had nothing to do with his own ambitions.

Furthermore, these views were no secret to the President. Jim is too much of a straight-shooter to mask his feelings on so important a question.

However, the two men never talked about this—though not for any fault of Jim's. Roosevelt has assiduously avoided the subject with Farley. The last time they spent any time together alone (a luncheon conference more than a month ago), they freely discussed arrangements for the Chicago convention, but the President carefully sidestepped the one big question.

Now that the allies are through juggling prime ministers and generals, maybe they can buckle down to this business of waging war.

Jobs For June Graduates

BY WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN
President, General Motors Corporation

If I should name some of the equipment a young man or woman should have upon entering the business world, I would start with IMAGINATION. Not day dreams, but imaginative thought toward improving whatever situation with which one is confronted.

Knudsen

The next requisite is COURAGE.

Courage is something that can be acquired. We are all scared when we are small. Courage is the union of the brain and heart and must be cultivated in an even bond as we grow up.

Napoleon used to say that he was always looking for people with "Two-o'clock-in-the-morning courage"—the time of the dew drop, when physical stamina is at its lowest and must be reinforced by a united command of head and heart.

It is the faith that faces the difficulties and obstacles with determination to carry on.

Another cherished possession of youth is what we in every-day language call FRIENDSHIP.

One can never have in later life the friendships which impulsive youth makes possible. Many of these friendships and much of this love will perhaps last through life if it was thoroughly earned and freely given to begin with.

AMBITION should be followed by work, for work is the salt of the earth. It is as necessary to life as bread.

Somehow when our frame was created, provision was made for the use of this frame, which made it essential we should go through a certain amount of physical effort in order to enjoy life itself.

Sometimes the HONESTY of youth is confounded with the angry art of plain speaking or blunt speaking.

A blunt mind is like a blunt knife. Wherever it cuts, it hurts twice as much.

This so-called angry art of blunt speaking is perhaps often due to the fact that we have repeated or someone has repeated a blunder. Blunt speech and anger correct few errors. Dispassionate analysis will prevent recurrence.

The duty of men and women on earth seems to be confined to just a few fundamentals without which we cannot live in society with our fellowmen.

First, WE MUST WORK FOR OUR OWN WELL-BEING. We must put our frame in shape. To give it the resistance which will make possible the longest possible life is the hope of everyone with any kind of moral courage.

Second, the FAMILY MUST BE CHERISHED AND PRESERVED.

The family forms the backbone of our society, and despite the many attempts to produce a new model with some fancy accessories, the fundamental remains the same.

Third, we must have that LOVE OF COUNTRY without which no nation can grow.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, June 7 (AP)—Wall Street expressed increased hopes for the allied defense today by pushing prices of stock leaders ahead one to two points.

It was a "thin" market with trade only a dribble but the dribble was steady and the advance extended into all sections of corporate securities. Transactions totalled 469,410 shares, compared with 427,315 yesterday.

Brokers said there was a general feeling that the price level would remain close to its present position until the battle in northern France was decided definitely.

The Italian withdrawal of ships from ocean commerce was received by operators in a "fait accompli" spirit. Many have been expecting Italy to enter the war for weeks past and some assert the accomplished fact is unlikely to have much direct effect on quotations.

Assisting the movement for the rise were reports that Washington favored a program which would provide about 1,000 American fighting planes for the allies in the near future, estimates of rapidly increasing steel production, especially in Birmingham, and a report from Detroit of improved automobile output.

Leaders on the upside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas, Lockheed, United Air Lines, American Airlines, Monsanto Chemical, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, Philip Morris, International Nickel, American Telephone, Loews, National Biscuit, Celanese and Texas Corp.

In the curb, where 86,000 shares were traded compared with 66,000 yesterday, chief gainers included Heyden Chemical, Brewster Aero, Bell Aircraft, Jones & Laughlin Steel and Mead Johnson.

New York, June 7 (AP)—Markets went along with other markets today in viewing the war news as slightly more favorable.

Advances were fairly general in the corporate division, although the rail average closed with a small decline. U. S. governments posted a number of gains running to ¼ of a point. Foreign issues were mixed. Turnover was small.

Corporates losing fractions to around 2 points higher included Walworth 4s at 59, Southern Pacific 4½s of '68 at 33½, Santa Fe 4s of '95 at 103, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s at 39, Illinois Central 4¾s at 31¼, Bethlehem Steel 3½s at 106, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s of '61 at 99¼.

In the foreign sector French stamped 7s dropped 6 on small transactions. Obligations of Canada, Belgium, New South Wales, and Italy moved up fractions to 2 or more.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, June 7 (AP)—War news, which seemed more cheerful to grain traders today, encouraged enough buying to lift wheat prices more than a cent a bushel.

Reports of the spread of smut in soft winter wheat, strength in securities and development of weather in the southwest believed to be more favorable for black rust also encouraged buyers. Some purchasing was attributed to northwestern flour interests.

Off the Record

BY SIGRID ARNE

AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—Big Bill Knudsen of General Motors has been chosen by the President to split open the bottle-neck in the defense program. He's a member of the national defense council.

This is the second World War in which Knudsen is on the production line. In 1916 he was building "Eagle boats" (a year item) for Ford on the muddy flats of the Rouge River.

He was worth $50,000 a year to Ford. Now, 20 years later, he's responsible for General Motors' flow of half a dozen makes of cars to the market. His salary varies between $200,000 and $300,000.

Even so, Bill Knudsen remains a simple, rather shy, big man who seems to think that everyone, millionaires or mechanics, works because he loves it. His one big wish is to produce—produce.

Writes Letters Long-Hand

He runs one of the simplest offices in Big Business. Just a plain room with work charts that tell him how many men are working at any given plant.

He still answers his own phone with a soft, "This is Knudsen." (The "K" is silent. "You wouldn't call a 'knee' a 'kuh-nee,' would you?" he says.)

He still writes his own letters in long hand on a yellow pad. He likes to sit in his office with his hat on and think.

He's been described as a "well-dressed but very intelligent polar bear." He's 61 years old, six-foot-three with steel-gray hair and moustache. Large twinkling blue eyes set wide, stooped shoulders. His hands are workman's hands, but they turn easily to the piano, accordion or xylophone. He likes musical evenings at home with his family—his handsome white-haired wife, three daughters and one son, who was graduated from M. I. T. to take a factory job at 75 cents an hour.

Knudsen's Detroit home is not particularly pretentious. But his big library includes one of the finest collections of Spinoza in the country. He once startled cronies at the Detroit Athletic Club by besting Editor Arthur Brisbane in an argument over a quotation from an Oriental philosopher.

Bike-Maker By Trade

Probably Knudsen has a personal interest in the defense program. He was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, the son of a customs inspector. One of ten children. He learned to make bicycles and saved money for a visit to the United States. Landed here in 1900, 21 years old, with $30 in his pocket. He has never gone back, except to visit.

He started here as a reamer in a New York shipyard. Shortly he was feeling fine, drawing $100 a month. But when he found the man next him had been making that for 35 years, he quit. He shifted to a Buffalo bicycle factory that began, quite early to make auto parts for Ford. Ford bought the place in 1911. Knudsen went with it.

Soon the lanky, blond, young man was running 27 assembly plants for Ford. Ford was drumming home, "low prices, high wages, mass production." Knudsen was figuring out the mass production.

He left Ford in 1921. There are as many stories about that as the Roosevelt-Al Smith split. In a year he was moving up in General Motors. In six years he had stepped up Chevrolet production from 68,000 to 1,200,000.

His Stand On Labor

Through recent years Knudsen's equals have inveighed loudly against the New Deal, the NLRB, and so on. Knudsen has fought, too, but left out name-calling. He says he hopes collective bargaining will become a matter of course. But, "let's make the unions as legally and financially responsible as the employers are."

He has a working philosophy that goes like this: "The one thing you need to get you where you want to go is what Napoleon called 'two-o'clock-in-the-morning' courage. If you have enough of that dew-drop-hour courage, and if you have enough men in your organization with it, you won't need slogans and pep-talks."

• SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

ROSSY McAFEE—went to college to play baseball, get an education, and settle a feud.

JUDY TOLLIVAR — daughter of Lincoln College's president.

HANNAH SHRIDER—hillbilly girl who followed Rossy to college.

Yesterday: Rossy's brawl with Hannah threatens to bring down reprimands of school authorities upon them, but Judy arranges to have the affair forgotten. She pleads with Rossy to remember he has come to school to get an education. He questions her about her father's history. She explains, but Rossy still believes Dr. Tollivar is the man who killed his father.

CHAPTER V

Rossy McAfee went out for basketball, just to keep in training while waiting for the baseball season to open. But he was not much on the floor. He made the scrub team. But every day he warmed up with old Leacock, who kept the gym and helped to develop the pitchers.

Leacock had once been with the Giants and he knew his hillbillies. Hell'n-Damnation had sent at least three men to the big time, and a dozen to the smaller leagues. Some enzyme in the ground there grew baseball stars and feudin'.

After a while, Rossy settled down in his new life. He could eat in public without starting a riot, and Judy had kept the secret of his and Hannah's fight, so the campus never knew.

One day he said to Coach Hurd, "I got to get off, Coach."

"What for? How come?"

"I want to go home. Could I get off Friday and come back maybe by noon Monday?"

"Bub, you go back in them hills and hollers and somebody will ambush a good prime second-hand star pitcher."

"I know how to dodge ambushes. I know all the trails."

"Okay. You been here a month now?"

"Five weeks."

"I'll lay flowers on your grave and croon a sad yodel over the mound. So long."

Rossy took the bus to Mountain City. From there he got the mail back out to Mint's Creek postoffice. From Pappy Mint he rented the loan of a mule that knew the stony roads and trails. He left the campus at 6 o'clock Friday and at 4 o'clock that afternoon he was jogging up a valley toward his mountain home.

Where the shadowy bridle trail came out on top of a mountain, he came to the picnic grounds and open land which formed the diamond next to Ebenezer church and school house. "Whoa!" Rossy said, and slipped from his mule.

There was a crude grandstand covered with dry brush, and Rossy went there and sat down, dropping into reverie. All at once that day flooded back upon him—the grounds there were filled with folks; the McAfees and Tollivers were out in force. Although Ebenezer was playing Cardover school, over the mountain, actually it was a game between the families. The Tollivers against the McAfees.

The feud was dozing but not sleeping. The past fall there had been a great camp meeting at Ebenezer, and all the parsons and exhorters were out in force to get the old heads of the clans to bury the hatchet. And so successfully had they labored in the vineyard that actually peace had been declared between the families.

It was a jocular peace, where bitter hate seemed to have been swallowed in athletic rivalry.

Actually, of course, hate and distrust and grudge smoldered just beneath the surface of all this high fun and carryings on. Rossy remembered it all. He remembered it as only a child of seven can remember with vivid eyes. Young as he was, he sensed the excitement and undercurrent of family bad feeling.

The young pitcher on the mound was a Tolliver. "Sock" Tolliver, they called him. A handsome, dark fellow. Not much was known about him except that he had a mighty pitching arm, and when he was wild he couldn't hit a flock of barns with a long rifle.

Today he started out wild. Amidst the yelling of "Play Ball!" and the hubbub of the occasion, plus the Fourth of July spirit, and plenty of prime moonshine, he walked the first two men to face him, and even now Rossy could recollect the ferocious joy of his folks as his own father walked to the plate with the solid hickory bat that Jay McAfee had made with his own hands.

At the first pitched ball Jay McAfee stepped forward a pace to connect with a wild pitch, and he hit that ball with a crack like a rifle shot.

"Foul," yelled the umpire.

Jay grinned and returned to the plate. "Just one little strike, Sock!" he pleaded. "And don't crack my skull with a bean ball!"

The ball came over. Rossy saw his father try to dodge it. It must have been a deep and confusing curve, for he couldn't avoid getting hit.

The bystanders, almost suffocating the squirming man on the ground, were pushed back by a deputy sheriff who was present. "Stand back!" he yelled. "Give him air! Here—you two," he pointed out two men. "Tote him back of the grandstand, yon."

Rossy's mother was screaming. A shout went up for blood. While the two men carried the unconscious man into the sheltered shade back of the stand, faction leaders diverted attention from Jay McAfee by crying:

"Grab him before he hulls out!"

A mob started toward the stunned pitcher, still standing in the box. Rossy, hardly realizing all that was happening, had seen Cousin Steve in the stand a moment before, but when he looked again Steve seemed to have slid through a loose plank in the grandstand and disappeared. The two men came out to see what was happening to the pitcher, leaving the unconscious man alone.

The pitcher gave one wild look at the advancing partisans, and as if it were his legs and not his wishes that moved him, he fled in the direction of a growth of trees and bushes at the far edge of the grounds. The men yelled and shouted, following at a run. There were two or three shots fired.

The last they saw of Socks Tolliver was his hat, lying where it fell when he dived under cover and was gone. There was a steep cliff at this point, and a man said he saw Sock jump off and sink among the tree-tops below.

As the baffled mob returned, there were those who said they saw another Sock Tolliver go tearing off in a somewhat different direction and disappear in the same way. Later they figured that was reported by some one who had laved his thirst with too much mountain dew.

For almost all this while Jay McAfee had been just lying there in the green brush that had fallen off the roof of the grandstand. Now they brought water and poured on his face, found that the skull was actually cracked. A horse doctor said the ball had hit and bounced for there were plain marks indicating a kind of double lick that could never be wholly accounted for. But the game, instead of settling the clans into good feelings, reopened the war and it was not to close for another 10 years.

Three days later McAfee died.

Rossy waked as from a dream and returned home. He came to a solid square log cabin in old trees and vines, where a bent mother waited for him. "That you, son?"

"It's me," Rossy said, and let the mule in the lot. He came and kissed his mother.

Supper was waiting, and they went in to the table of hot smoked sausage, honey, salt-rising bread, and coffee with cream as thick as yellow paint. Rossy said the grace, and for once he was consciously thankful for these gifts.

"I got your letter saying you'd come, son, if you could get off. Your Cousin Steve fetched it from the postoffice, and he said he wanted to see you and apt as not he'll be here pretty soon."

Steven Hogg appeared shortly after Rossy had finished supper and lighted a cigaret. He was a thick-bodied man, all of 10 years Rossy's senior. His mother and Rossy's father were half-brother and sister, so Hogg was not really all McAfee. In a way he was not McAfee at all, although always he professed to espouse the hates and prejudices and loves and blood-bonds of the McAfee tribe.

Now he was living on lands that once had been thought to belong to Rossy's father. But he was generous with his substance; it was Steve Hogg who encouraged Rossy to finish high school, to play ball, and even to go away to college. Now he mentioned that.

"Well, told you you'd like it, bub, didn't I? How you come on?"

"Okay," Rossy said, watching his cousin, and thinking of what Hannah had said about Hogg asking her to marry him. The man was a bachelor.

"Whilst you was up here, Rossy," Steve Hogg said, sinking his voice low so the gaunt woman in the kitchen could not overhear, "I thought I'd better name a thing or two to you. Things maybe you'd better know. It's about this here man who heads up that there college down there."

"You mean Lincoln College?"

"That's right. Tollivar. Well, he's up in the world. A high and mighty, you mout say. Just the same he's still just one of these here Hell'n-Damnation Tollivers, even though he spells hit with a instead of e. You can trim the hair off the tail of a jackass but he stays a mule right on, Rossy. That's what this man has tried to do.

"But he's the feller that beanballed your paw the day of the game, and here's how I know it for a fack."

He began to tell as strange a yarn as Rossy had ever heard about the whole strange mess.

PERMIT GIVEN SOO TRANSPORT

Service Commission Okays Petition for Soo-Brimely Service

Application of the B. & L. Transit Co. of Sault Ste. Marie, Eino Luomas, proprietor, for an extension of its route permit for transportation between the Soo and Brimley has been allowed by the Michigan Public Service commission.

The order was made and became effective on June 5, according to word received yesterday from S. A. Lund, secretary of the public service commission at Lansing.

The permit is for carrying both passengers and freight between the Soo and Brimley. The B. & L.'s petition to carry freight between Newberry and St. Ignace, as an alternate route only on highways M-48 and U.S. 2, serving also intermediate points, was denied by the commission. The denial was on the grounds that presently certified carriers are adequately equipped to render the service sought to be performed by the applicant.

The B. & L. already holds permits to operate between several Upper Peninsula points and also between the Soo and Lansing, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids. The new permit, effective until December 31, 1940, specifies that the carrier may operate from the Soo on U.S. 2 to the junction with M-28 and thence via M-28 to Brimley.

Hearing in the case was held in Escanaba in January.

Vacation Tours Offered By C&NW

A minimum of train-riding and a maximum of horseback-riding or other sports which may intrigue the interest of tour members are the noteworthy features of the series of Rocky Mountain vacations planned by the North Western-Union Pacific tours for the summer season, says C. R. Henderson, local agent.

"These tours were created essentially for the person having only a week's vacation," Mr. Henderson states, "and the details have been worked out in the most meticulous detail, to permit as much time as possible in the Rockies. Here, while staying in comfortable hostelries, and with every cost included in the all-expense plan, the guests on our tours are nevertheless free to enjoy themselves according to their particular desires.

"We feel that members of these parties have diverse tastes and interests. Hence, we do not endeavor to plan every hour of every day for them, but rather, give them three full days, for example in Troutdale-in-the-Pines, for mountain climbing, fishing, riding, photography or other hobbies which the travelers may wish to pursue."

Travelers from the east may join these tours at Chicago.

Longer Colorado tours permit more extensive visits to the high areas of the Rockies. Some of the tours are rated on a basis as inexpensive as $10 daily, including all expenses of rail, meals and hotels.

KruGon FOUND FAVOR WITH MICHIGAN LADY

Was Well Pleased With the Surprising Results KruGon Gave Her; Is Feeling Better In Many Ways; Strength Returning Too

"KruGon gave me far better results than I had hoped for," said Mrs. C. Granzow, 107 West 7th St., Royal Oak, Michigan. "For Fifteen long years I had been in a miserable condition. My health problems began when I became badly constipated and then various complications soon developed. My digestion became poor and I always had to be careful of my diet as gas formed in such abundance so soon after eating I could hardly stand it at times. Irregular kidney action caused my rest and sleep to be broken until I was constantly tired and worn-out. At times I found work an awful drudgery in my condition and I actually thought I would never be any better when I began the use of KruGon."

"My only regret today is that I did not learn of KruGon long ago," continued Mrs. Granzow. "This tonic-laxative gave me surprising results for now my bowels are regular and since relief from those clogged intestinal impurities I have shown steady improvement. I no longer fear digestive upsets following my meals, sleep the whole nights through without a single disturbance, feel so well again. It is no wonder KruGon has become so popular . . . it is a deserving remedy."

Youngsters "Capture" Huge Pine Snake

Here are "Bring 'Em Back Almost Alive" Donny Bichler, left, and Tom "T.C." Harris Jr., right, a couple of big game hunters who stalked this monstrous, five foot pine snake in a Ludington street alley a short time ago, and in the excitement of the chase forgot that real Frank Bucks always bring back the game alive and kicking. There wasn't much fight left in the speckled reptile when "T.C." and Donny proudly though a little squeamishly held it up to be photographed. Donny thinks the whole situation is pretty funny while "T.C." doesn't seem to be enjoying his part of the job much.

BACK FROM DENMARK

Norway—Abner Lindeborg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Lindeborg, of this city, who was employed in Denmark at the time of the German invasion, has returned here to spend a few weeks' vacation. He has been employed by the Gulf Oil company since June 1934, and has travelled extensively to many parts of the world.

At the time of the invasion on about the 9th of April Mr. Lindeborg said they heard of a slight skirmish on the border but as the Danish army had been ordered not to resist only a few persons were killed. The airplanes began arriving soon after and from noon until midnight a steady stream of motorized units was passing thru Aalborg. At Copenhagen the King's guard resisted the entry of the Germans into the palace and a few were killed but no heavy fighting ensued.

TERMED SUICIDE

Menominee—The body of Berger Olson of Hermansville was recovered Wednesday from the Menominee river about one and a half miles below the Faithorn bridge, over which the Soo Line railroad is routed, sheriff deputies said. The body had risen from the bottom and was caught in the wire fence stretched across the river on the Wisconsin side.

Coroner Albert M. Larson termed Olson's death a suicide. He said there would be no inquest. Olson, a section man, leaped from a motor car as it passed over the bridge last Friday. Sheriff Edward J. Reindl and deputies and several Conservation Department officials searched for the body.

University Is Leading Ann Arbor 'Industry'

BY FRED VAN DEVENDER

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 7 (AP)—Here is a Michigan city which makes no claim to extensive industrial enterprise, a city whose chamber of commerce frankly is interested in no factories not already here, but which is vitally concerned with the town's growth through extensive cooperation with the University of Michigan.

"Our principal industry," said one civic leader, "is the university."

And it is. But in addition, there are some nationally known factories here making baling machinery, ball bearings, auto specialties, cameras and important dies for tooling.

And although these factories are important employers of labor, the city is primarily interested in the great state university which attracts cultural leaders not only from every part of the United States—but every part of the world.

Ann Arbor reflects the culture brought here by the university. Broad, tree-lined avenues; narrow, beautiful, winding streets against which are set stately mansions, substantial homes of an architectural decade now passed; palatial fraternity and sorority houses where both serious and fun-loving youth abide; streamlined architecture of the modern day wherein the new generation of substantial citizens dwell.

They all form a part of the culture which is Ann Arbor. Here is the state's school of architecture. Therefore, care is taken by a builder as he plans his house and it forms an integral part of the community in which it is to be built.

Homes are built on large, sweeping lots which are well kept and well landscaped.

Atmosphere of Learning

That is the atmosphere which pervades all of Ann Arbor. It is the atmosphere of learning, of knowing what the good things in life are, now to get them and how to enjoy them.

It cannot be said that Ann Arbor is a typical college town. The university is too large for that. After all, here in this lower Michigan town of some 30,000 persons are world famed surgeons; world famed research specialists; world famed physicists and chemists; world famed scholars in almost every branch of learning. These men are not musty college professors in black alpaca coats who while away evenings with chitchat over pipes with some of their students.

Rival cities might say "but we also have these things." Yes, but not in the profusion you find them in Ann Arbor. Hardly a section of this city but which reflects this culture. True, there are sections where common laborers and household workers make their homes, but even in these sections, there is a sense of comfortable well being.

Not only within the city itself, but along the beautiful Huron river, this atmosphere of culture maintains and here again the university has played its part. The department of forestry has reforester hillsides. The extensive arbortum for the botanical department is a beauty spot which attracts thousands each year.

City of Flowers

Outstanding example of what the visitor finds in Ann Arbor was the annual flower show. This was no miniature exhibit of pretty flowers. This was an exhibit of gardens with growing flowers, richly landscaped and with a definite theme. There were country gardens, formal gardens, house gardens and vegetable gardens. The profusion of exhibits filled the giant Yost field house on the university campus.

The exhibits came from scores of sources, representative cross section of the cultural side of the city.

In Ann Arbor there are growers of 450 varieties of peonies and more than 300 varieties of lilacs.

Ann Arbor can afford these things. Latest figures show it led all other Michigan cities in per capita retail sales. Last year there were 182 homes built in the city at a cost of more than a million dollars.

Of course, the university itself with its extensive, magnificent campus is in a class by itself. Few other universities in America are so large. It has twelve and a half thousand students and is one of the ten largest American universities.

On its campus is the law quadrangle, one of the finest combined dormitories and classroom buildings on any campus, and the Horace H. Rackham school of graduate studies building generally is credited with being the finest building of all types on any campus. Here also is a carrolion, third largest in America.

Yes, Ann Arbor literally lives and breathes the atmosphere of the campus. And why not? It gives and breathes the atmosphere of the campus. And why not? It gives employment to 4,800 of the city's population. It provides an annual payroll of six and a half million dollars. Its twelve and a half thousand students patronize the city's merchants.

Name Widely Known

And yet only in recent years has the struggle between town and gown been worn down. Time was when there was a definite barrier there, and although it still exists to a slight extent, for the most part Ann Arbor citizens have come to realize that in the university they have their largest industry.

They have begun to realize that the name of Ann Arbor has been carried throughout the civilized world—and to some uncivilized sections—by men and women who received their training here.

They have come to realize the extensive income derived from and as a result of the university.

They have come to realize the facilities provided to themselves and to their children by having the university in their own back yards, facilities such as university hospital, rated one of the finest in America, where some of the finest surgeons in the world handle difficult cases.

Despite the profound impression the university makes on both the townspeople and the visitor, Ann Arbor is not wholly devoted to the university.

Like other southern Michigan cities, it is a farmer's town. The agricultural folk flock to town on Saturdays to do their trading, even on those days when there are thousands from other cities coming here for football games.

The land about the Huron valley is rich and on the hillsides farmers raise more sheep than in any other county in Michigan.

In fact, the "square" in downtown Ann Arbor, in the center of which is the old red-brick court house, looks more like a farmers' town than the seat of the State's culture.

Origin of Name

There is only one Ann Arbor in the United State's postal guide, but then there was only one Ann Rumsey, and it was Ann's Arbor in the early days of the town from which it took its name.

It was Elisha Walker Rumsey and John Allen who founded this town, young adventurous spirits who came from the east hunting a living, seeking to leave for posterity something which they created.

They found it in the rich Huron valley. They platted their town and incorporated it in 1824, but it was not until Allen one day found Ann Rumsey sitting in her arbor that the town got its name.

"This is my arbor. This is Ann's Arbor," she reportedly told Allen. "Don't you think that a good name for the town?"

Allen did and so it was named. Almost at once the state university, founded in Detroit in 1817, was moved here and thus almost from its inception, the town and the university have grown and prospered together.

Up and down the Huron river there are remnants of dams constructed scores of years ago to take advantage of its swift curent for power. There are new dams too, to provide electric power.

Along the Huron's shores are numerous golf courses, a half dozen within easy reach of Ann Arbor.

There are parks and beaches and boat clubs along its banks.

From the hills overlooking the Huron, the visitor on clear days can see for miles what appears to be solid forest in the center of which flows the river.

But most of all in Ann Arbor, the visitor sees and feels the majesty of Michigan's knowledge. Here, he knows, men converse with the stars and know their meaning; they seek and find the answers to unasked questions; they pore over musty tomes in the huge library in search of knowledge.

This is Ann Arbor, seat of the University of Michigan. Until the visitor has seen and felt and had its impression left on him, he has not seen Michigan.

YOUTH INJURED IN CAR MISHAP

Melbourne Williams, 22, Suffers Fractured Nose

Melbourne Williams, 22, suffered a broken nose and other bruises early Friday morning when a light roadster he was driving crashed into a catch basin and a tree near the intersection of Main street and Maple avenue. The car was damaged to the extent of approximately $150.

The mishap occurred about 3:40 o'clock Friday morning and Williams reported to city police who investigated the accident that he probably fell asleep at the wheel.

The machine careened to the left side of the road, crashed into the catch basin, curb and finally into a tree between the sidewalk and the curb in front of the sheriff's quarters. Williams was driving south on Maple street at the time of the accident.

The youth yesterday was given a summons for reckless driving and will probably be arraigned in justice court this morning.

Nick Kolovos, of Sault Ste. Marie, who figured in a similar accident near Gulliver Thursday pleaded guilty to reckless driving in justice court yesterday. He was fined $25 and $5 costs, which he made arrangements to pay.

BATTERS BREAK UP TIE IN 8TH

Claude Passeau Travels Entire Route; Coffman Charged With Loss

Chicago, June 7 (AP)—Jimmy Gleeson's single and doubles by Billy Herman and Bob Collins broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning today and gave Chicago's Cubs a 5 to 3 decision over the Boston Bees. It was the Cubs' fourth victory in a row.

Dick Coffman relieved Dick Errickson at the start of the inning and was charged with the defeat. Claude Passeau went the route for the Cubs, allowing eight hits in achieving his fourth triumph against six setbacks.

Outfielder Billy Nicholson's third home run in two days, with Phil Cavarretta on base, gave Chicago a 2-1 lead in the sixth, but two errors by Shortstop Bobby Mattick helped Boston tie the score in the seventh. After Dominic Dallessandro's triple put the Cubs ahead again in their half, Chet Ross' homer once more evened the count. The Cubs then settled the issue at Coffman's expense.

DODGERS TAKE THEIR REVENGE

Victory Over Reds, 4-2, Puts Brooklyn At Top of Heap

Cincinnati, June 7 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers got their vengeance on the Cincinnati Reds today with a 4 to 2 eleven inning victory that lifted Brooklyn into the National league and snapped Bucky Walters' string of pitching triumphs at nine.

It was here at Crosley field on May 1 that the Reds stopped Brooklyn after the Dodgers had won their first nine games of the season. They batted Hugh Casey out of the box that day.

Today the Dodgers built their new winning streak to six straight games and Hugh Casey received credit for the victory after relieving Tot Pressnell. They permitted Cincinnati only six hits while Walters was belted for nine, including Dolph Camilli's two-run homer that won the game in the eleventh.

BENGALS POUND 2 PITCHERS, 7-1

Newhouser Keeps Seven Boston Red Sox Hits Well Scattered

Boston, June 7, (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, behind the effective pitching of youthful Harold Newhouser, gained a full game in their climb toward the American league top by slugging two Boston Red Sox pitchers today for a 7 to 1 victory in the opening of a three-game series.

Spoils His Shutout

Newhouser, 19-year-old former sandlot southpaw, scattered seven hits in winning his third game of the season, but kept himself from a shutout when, in the ninth, he yielded a single and two of his seven walks for the Red Sox's only run.

Afield, his teammates gave him flawless support and they shelled his mound opponents, Rookie Wilburn Butland and Chick Wagner, for 10 hits before a ladies' day crowd of 11,700.

Three of the hits included doubles by Rudy York and Birdie Tebbetts and a lusty triple by Charley Gehringer that accounted for two of the runs.

Butland, a 19-game winner with Minneapolis of the American association last year, started strong, pitching hitless ball for the first two frames, but in the third the Bengals found the range and by the end of the sixth, after Wagner had taken over as relief, had scored all their runs.

Tebbetts Tallies First

Tebbetts scored the first run in the third, opening with a double, moving to third on an infield out, and crossing the plate on Dick Bartell's outfield fly. In the fourth, Rudy York, with two out, singled, took second on a walk to Bruce Campbell, and tallied on a single by Pinky Higgins.

Walks to Tebbetts and Bartell, followed by a triple by Gehringer and Hank Greenberg's single, accounted for three more runs in the fifth and marked the finish of Butland.

Wagner, taking over in the sixth, was greeted with singles by Campbell and Higgins, but the inning might have been scorless had not Gene Desautels, Red Sox catcher, thrown the ball away on an attempted double steal.

Campbell was on second and Higgins on first when they worked the double steal. Desautels, in his eagerness to nip Campbell at third, threw the ball into the outfield and both runs crossed the plate. Wagner retired Newhouser and Bartell on infield flies to end the inning.

Three Regulars Injured

That ended the scoring for Detroit, although in the seventh the Tigers filled the bases, after two were out, on an infield single by Greenberg, a double by York, and an intentional pass to Campbell. The strategy was successful as Wagner struck out Higgins.

Tom Carey opened the Boston half of the ninth with a single and went to third on successive walks to relief catcher Joe Glenn and pinch-hitter Johnny Peacock. Carey was caught at the plate when Dominic DiMaggio rolled to Newhouser, but Glenn came home on the next play, an infield out.

Boston played with three of its regulars—Lou Finney, Bobby Doerr and Jim Tabor—out with injuries.

League Leading Trenary Team Plays Bark River

With the Delta-Alger county league not more than three weeks old, only one team remains unbeaten, presaging a very interesting season for the loop.

Trenary has two victories, one over Rock and the other over Perkins, and is the only team with a perfect record. Bark River and Ford River are tied for second with two wins and one loss, these two teams having played an extra game. Chatham, Rock and Wells are tied for fourth place while Perkins and Schaffer have yet to win a game.

Trenary will get a tough test Sunday when it travels to Bark River to meet the slugging team from the south end of Delta county. A victory for Bark River would put that village in the league lead and would drop Trenary a couple of notches.

Ford River will attempt to keep in the running in traveling to Chatham, a team which has potential power but which was trounced by Rock last week.

Wells and Rock will battle it out on the Rock diamond to see which of two teams moves up from their deadlocked position. Each team has wone one game and lost one.

In the final game o fthe day, Perkins will travel to Schaffer in a game that will lift one team out of the cellar—unless the game ends in a tie or is rained out.

TODAY WE STEAL our sport column from Jimmy Ward's Sports Salad in the Mining Journal . . . writes the handsome Marquette scribe: "Unless something unforeseen happens, the Graveraet U. P. tennis champions appear destined to continue to rule the roost next year, for five of a squad of nine able performers will return for another season of action.

"The four graduating seniors are Dave Drury, Ira Bush, John Stoll and John Rank, which is a bit hard for Graveraet net supporters to swallow, but look at the nucleus Coach Milton Johnson will have with which to build a team to defend the peninsula title, won two weeks ago in Houghton: Frank Frei, Tom McKie, Dale Rank, Dick Keskey and Albert Nadeau — all consistent players who should improve considerably before another net season rolls around.

"But here's the item that bids fair for Graveraet's continued success. Of the five returning players, four are sophomores, McKie being the only junior on the squad. Coach Johnson has ample power to keep the Redmen on top for at least two years, if things break right. Escanaba is a power to consider.

You can't keep a good golfer down town.

"GRAVERAET beat Escanaba by 3-4 of a point in Houghton. The two teams were easily the class of the tournament and that means of U. P. high school tennis, because if any team had a chance of winning, it would have been entered in the Houghton meet. Ironwood was third with five points. Lake Linden four, and the rest—Iron Mountain, Houghton, Hancock and Painesdale — compiled only 3 1-4 points among them.

"It is unfortunate that a dual meet that would bring Escanaba and Graveraet together couldn't have been arranged. We would be able to tell more about the future possibilities of the Redmen, but on the basis of their showing at Houghton, their almost clean sweep of Gladstone last Saturday and the fact that five veterans will return — four of them for two more seasons — it's a safe wager, Marquette will be in the thick of any U. P. championship in tennis for years to come.

Dollars and sense don't necessarily go together.

"YOU HAVE TO HAND IT to the Redmen for employing a bit of strategy in winning the U. P. title. Frei and Drury are strong singles contestants, having gone to the semi-finals in the 1939 prep school meet. But they passed up a chance to play in singles to pair up in doubles. And the strategy paid dividends. They won the U. P. doubles title and McKie, Bush and other singles and doubles contestants came through with enough points to win for Marquette.

"Graveraet will be host to Negaunee this week and will go to Gladstone next Saturday for a return engagement. Next season, Johnson promises, there will be dual matches with the strong Escanaba squad."

Deluge Of 18 Hits Smothers Phillies; Pirates Win, 10-4

Pittsburgh, June 7, (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates today smothered the Philadelphia Phillies under a deluge of 18 hits, including six doubles and three triples, to win 10 to 4 for their third consecutive victory.

Rookie outfielder Maurice Van Robays paced the Pirate batting spree with four safe blows, including two singles, a double and a triple, and shortstop Arky Vaughan contributed three two-baggers. Outfielder Joe Marty homered for the Quaker City team in the second, with the bases empty.

HERMAN PINCH-HITTER

Los Angeles — Babe Herman, former National League star, is being used exclusively as a pinch-hitter by the Hollywood club of the Coast League.

Cleveland, June 7 (U.P.)—Golf makes just about as much sense as the Venus Di Milo would using the sign language.

I'll tell you and I'll use the national open championship that started here over the Canterbury course as an example.

Canterbury, from first tee to home green, is a little over 7,000 yards long. That means there is four miles of it the long way.

Canterbury, taken as a whole, sprawls over some 175 acres, which is some acreage, even in Texas.

It is stippled with scores of traps and some are deep enough to warrant a player refusing to enter them without a miner's lamp and a canary to warn him of dangerous gases.

The rough is thicker than a matinee idol's hair and there are enough trees to house every bird in the country.

In short Canterbury is a big, tough, unyielding golf course that demands men of muscle. It is no place for weaklings. So, one would seem to be correct if he chose his open winner from the group of long hitters, or from the group of men who have the power to lift mighty shots over trees, or from a group whose corpuscles are virile enough to blast the ball from the deep and yawning traps.

Putting to Win

Now here is where we get back to my original premise that golf doesn't make sense.

The 1940 national open championship won't be won in the wide open spaces of vast Canterbury. All those acres are just so much waste space. The open will be won on the smooth, tidy greens of Canterbury—greens that are no better or no worse than the greens of a hundred courses in the country.

Putting will determine the winner here, just as it has determined nearly all of the golf winners of the past twenty years. The delicate stroke on the greens, the gentle, sensitive tap required for putts will pay-off, and not the thunderous swing at tee, brassie, or trap shots.

The winner will not be the most spectacular putter in the field, either. He may not hole a single putt of fifteen, twenty- or fifty feet, but—and oh, how true this is—he won't miss many five, six or seven foot ones. That's what wins tournaments—the six foot putt. The man whocan't can those can't win.

Too Many Putts

You know the only thing that kept Ralph Guldahl from winning at Philadelphia last year and making it three in a row? The six foot putt. From tee to green Guldahl hit the ball better than anyone in the field, including the winner, Byron Nelson. But he just couldn't make the six-footers. His putts by rounds were 32-36-35-34. That's fatal. A man must average no more than 32 putts a round to win. Once he goes over that figure he is licked.

A dig into the records covering the period that Bobby Jones was grand-slamming, shows that Jones averaged 32 or fewer putts per round, and I dare say the modern game hasn't produced a champion who putted worse than that.

So, in casting about for the winner here at canterbury take the putters into consideration. Of course, if you hit on the perfect combination—a tremendous hitter who also has a surgeon's touch on the greens—then you've found the man who'll win.

And I think I have. His name is Sammy Snead. If I'm wrong, sue Snead, it'll be his fault.

TRACKMEN WIN FOR MARQUETTE

Indiana Negro Breaks Discuss Record At Milwaukee

BY TOM SILER

Milwaukee, June 7, (AP)—A powerful display of team strength and balance gave Marquette university its second straight Central collegiate track and field championship tonight over a field of 31 rivals in the 15th annual running of the meet.

A heavy rain fell through more than half of the meet, precluding any track records and shooting the marks higher than usual for such a star-studded field.

The Hilltoppers piled up a total of 41 1-5 points.

The only new record was set by Indiana's Archie Harris, husky negro, who saided the discus 163 feet, 9¾ inches. His mark broke the 1939 mark of 162 feet, 9½ inches, set by William Faymonville of Notre Dame.

Harris went on to take shot put honors with a heave of 49 feet, 1¾ inches, the only entrant to win two first places.

Indiana, fading after taking an early lead in the meet, finished second with 28 3-5 points. Wisconsin was third with 27 1-10 and Notre Dame, five-time winner, fourth with 24 1-10.

Marquette scored in 11 of the 16 events although winning only two first places and tying for another. Don Vosberg gave the Hilltopper squad five points with a javelin toss of 205 feet, 4¾ inches and the school's half mile relay team won in one minute, 29.9 seconds.

Marquette also picked up eight points in the pole vault when Earl Stolberg and Don Bertsch tied for first place with Bill Williams of Wisconsin at 12 feet, 9 inches.

The champions competed without their captain and dash star, Charles Beaudry, who was sidelined by a leg injury.

The most exciting race of the evening was the mile relay in which Notre Dame's quartet outran Marquette to take first place by a scant three feet.

Finishing behind the first four were:

Xavier of New Orleans, Minnesota and Oklahoma, 16 each; Butler 12, Ohio State 10, Michigan Normal of Ypsilanti 8½, Michigan State 9 1-10, Albama State Teachers (Montgomery) 6, Grinnell 5, Oklahoma City university 3, Beloit and Chicago, 2 3-5, Northern Illinois Teachers, Western Michigan Teachers (Kalamazoo) and Ashland (O), two each; Northwestern 1 7-10, Illinois 1½, Wayne, Tuskegee (Alabama) Institute, and Drake, one each.

Jinx Still Tagging Schumacher; Giants Lose To Cards, 3-2

St. Louis, June 7, (AP)—In their first game following the release of Manager Ray Blades the St. Louis Cardinals edged out the New York Giants 3 to 2 today for unlucky Hal Schumacher's sixth defeat.

Although the St. Louis sluggers were held to six hits, they put together four of them with a walk for all their runs in the first inning.

After that the Cardinals proceeded to make five double plays, one short of the major league record, to keep the Giants in check although the New Yorkers got ten hits off Lon Warneke and Curt Davis.

The Cards were in charge of Coach Mike Gonzales today and will continue to be until Billy Southworth takes over Monday.

Score by innings:
New York 000 000 200—2 10 0
St. Louis 300 000 00x—3 6 1

Schumacher, W. Brown and Danning; Warneke, Davis and Owen.

Big Bimelech And Gallahadion Head Belmont Park List

New York, June 7 (AP)—The battle for the three-year-old turf championship comes down to Belmont Park's mile and a half course tomorrow with E. R. Bradley's Bimelech and Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion heading a field of seven in the 72nd running of the $25,000 added Belmont stakes.

If the weather remains as fair and the track as fast as today, Bimelech figures to parade postward the choice of an expected crowd of between 30,000 and 35,000. The Bradley colt has not lived up to pre-season expectations but he has shown he can run over a pasteboard track.

After finishing second back of Gallahadion in the Kentucky Derby, he came back to whip Mrs. Mars' horse in the Preakness and then trailed far back in the Withers mile at Belmont, which was won by Mrs. Payne Whitney's Corydon, a rank outsider. His jockey, F. A. Smith, blamed both defeats on the cuppy condition of the tracks.

TRAINER RECOVERING

Detroit, June 7, (AP)—The condition of Denny Carroll, veteran Detroit Tigers trainer who underwent an operation in Henry Ford hospital for adhesions, was reported "satisfactory" tonight by physicians. He previously had submitted to an appendectomy.

Ball Club Line-up Changed; Team Plays Manistique Sunday

A number of changes have been made in the line-up of the Escanaba baseball club, Manager George Williams announced yesterday. An effort is being made to build a strong offensive club and as many younger players as possible are being used.

The local club meets Manistique here Sunday afternoon at the 23rd street diamond.

All of the Rainbow league teams are in the same position each club having won one and lost one game.

NATIONAL OPEN TIGHTENED UP

Snead Falls Back Into Tie With Little and Horton Smith

BY GAYLE TALBOT

Canterbury Golf Club, Cleveland, June 7, (AP)—Wind, rain and tournament jitters proved a little too much for Sam Snead today and the boy from the mountain country fell back into a three-way tie with Lawson Little and Horton Smith with 141 at the halfway stage of the national open golf championship.

Sam, whose 67 in yesterday's opening round broke all open records, was the big show today and he did his best. A tremendous crowd followed his every stroke and nearly made it impossible for him to play several holes. A sudden, violent windstorm struck him on the fourth hole, and at the short 17th he took a disastrous five to finish with a 74, two strokes over par.

Thus the grand championship of golf tightened up like a kettle drum. Little, playing around early before the storm blew up, shot himself a brilliant 69 to catch Snead. Horton Smith, playing late after the elements had subsided, produced a 72—even par—to make it a trio at 141.

Frank Walsh, the veteran, stroked the only other 69 of the day to land all by himself in the second notch at 142. Ben Hogan and Sam Parks, Jr., were deadlocked at 143. Ralph Guldahl, Vic Ghezzi, Dutch Harrison and Leonard Dodson were a quartet at 144.

Among this select group, if matters run true to form, will be found the winner when the final, back-breaking 36 holes have been played tomorrow. Sixty-six players who shot 153 or better for the first two rounds qualified for the finish, but it is extremely doubtful that any of those over 144 tonight will catch the leaders.

Little's name was on many lips tonight. The big fellow, who won two American and British amateur championships a few years ago, said he had "that old feeling" again. His 69 today was a masterpiece, and when Little is in that humor he is hard to get along with.

Smith, one of the last of the stars to come in, had an excellent chance to take the leadership alone. He needed only par scores on the last three holes to finish ahead of Snead and Little by a stroke, but he tightened and took a 4 on the short 17th, the same hole that blasted Snead's hope of finishing ahead for the second straight day.

Canterbury was much harder today than on the first round. Outside of the 69's by Walsh and Little, the only exceptional scores were 70's by Lloyd Mangrum and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison. Many of the others soared high and such "name" stars as Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thomson, Bud Ward, Jimmy Demaret, Clayton Heafner and Johnny Goodman failed to qualify for the final 36.

PLATE STOLEN ON BOB FELLER

Yanks Overtake Indians In Ninth to Annex 5 to 4 Victory

New York, June 7. (AP)—The world champion Yankees first embarrassed and then defeated Bob Feller today, scoring two runs in the ninth inning to overtake the Cleveland Indians 5 to 4.

The Yankees startled a big week day crowd of 31,430, as well as the Indians, by stealing home against Feller in the second inning, and finally overwhelmed him with four singles in the fatal ninth.

The struggle was an exciting if erratic hurling duel matching Feller against Marvin Breuer and Bump Hadley of the Yanks, with the latter pair holding the Indians to five hits.

Cleveland's first hit was Hal Trosky's 14th home run in the second inning and three of the visitors' other blows were crowded into the third inning for three runs.

Windup Too Long

Meantime, Feller had his fast ball working well and received spectacular support. After giving up three runs in the first two frames, he steadied to hold the champs to two hits and one run until the ninth.

Feller's fault today, however, was wobbliness with men on base. In the second inning he was caught flat-footed as George Selkirk, who had doubled and reached third on a fly, raced home while Feller went through his complicated windup.

The defeat kept Cleveland out of virtual tie for the American league lead and ended a six game winning streak for Feller, who now has won eight and lost three. He had beaten the Yanks twice before.

Score by innings:
Cleveland 013 000 000—4 5 1
New York 110 000 102—5 9 1

Feller and Hemsley; Breuer, Hadley and Dickey.

Rookie Drives In 3 Runs And Athletics Nose Browns 3 to 2

Philadelphia, June 7, (AP)—Al Brancato, rookie third baseman, drove in all the Athletics' runs today as Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 3-2 behind the six-hit pitching of Nelson Potter.

In four trips to the plate, Brancato got a triple, double and single, his safety in the ninth scoring Dick Siebert with the winning tally.

Johnny Bernardino homered in the fourth with one on to account for the two St. Louis runs. The Browns filled the bases with two out in the ninth, but Kennedy grounded to Benny McCoy.

St. Louis 000 200 000—2 6 0
Philadelphia 000 010 101—3 9 1

Kennedy and Swift; Potter and Hayes.

OLD U. S. GUNS TO BE TURNED IN FOR ALLIES

ment announced that, at Ford's request, a pursuit plane of the latest type would be flown to the Ford airport on Monday, with an engineer to explain it to Ford and the men of his own engineering department.

Ford recently said that if free from governmental interference he could produce 1,000 planes of standard type daily, in about six months. This he followed up with a request to the war department that it send him a plane of the type most needed. He also sent assurances of his support for the national defense program.

Following up yesterday's disclosure that fifty naval planes would be turned back to their manufacturer—with the latter free to sell them at once to the Allies—Mr. Roosevelt today asked for authority to turn back left-over World war stocks of guns.

Legal power already exists to follow such a course with planes and ammunition, Mr. Roosevelt said, but guns are in a different status. Under the existing statutes, he said, the money realized by the government on the guns would have to be turned into the general fund of the treasury.

By contrast, it is the president's plan to have these sums left as credit on the books of the manufacturer to whom they are sold, this credit to be applied later to purchases of up-to-date equipment, replacing the material sold. Once in the treasury, the money could be made available for replacement purposes only by a congressional appropriation.

TWO MICHIGAN PERSONS DEAD IN BAD STORM

water, and many trees were uprooted west of that city. A fallen tree blocked US-112, a main Detroit-to-Chicago artery, for nearly half an hour at a point two miles west of Coldwater.

A similar thunderstorm, also accompanied by high wind, struck Port Huron. Two persons required first aid when the gale caused the big tent of the Lewis Brothers Circus to collapse a few minutes before the afternoon performance, throwing 500 who had gathered to witness the show into a panic.

The injured were Mrs. George Armstrong, 30, and Sheldon Cowper, 15, both of Port Huron. Most of the audience were children.

Lightning caused fire that damaged a home in Port Huron. Telephone and power cables were down in several rural districts in the vicinity.

A light thundershower, accompanied by gusts of high wind, visited Detroit but no serious damage was reported.

Armament Program Won't Stop Cars, Declares GM Head

Detroit, June 7. (AP)—C. E. Wilson, acting president of General Motors Corp., said today the government's huge rearmament program would not mean curtailment of normal production of new model motor-cars.

In his first interview since succeeding President William S. Knudsen, a member of the President's special defense commission, Wilson asserted there had been "exaggerated reports" of the effect rearmament would have on the industry's production capacity.

"If it is only a matter of a big rearmament program, there need be no interference with the normal production of the automobile industry," Wilson said. "So far as I have been able to learn, the automobile industry will be expected to manufacture mainly things on wheels and engines. This is something the industry is equipped to do and can do in addition to normal production of new model automobiles."

700 Barrels Of Beer Halt Sewage Disposal

Under the eyes of a representative of the United States department of internal revenue, a few million swigs of beer went down the sewer yesterday and the day before as a couple of workers and a few others looked on at the Delta Brewery plant. There were 700 barrels of it.

And when it was over, the city sewage disposal plant was partially out of commission. The activated sludge tank, used regularly in an auxiliary way, will take over the whole load of sewage purification. Disposal was halted, but not stopped.

There wasn't a soul who got any good out of that beer, but a few million or billion bacteria in the sludge tanks at the disposal plant were knocked completely out. And when they were knocked out by the heavy dose of the unusual fare of malt, sugar, hops and alcohol, the sludge tanks were no longer any good.

John Norgaard, plant superintendent, smelled the beer in the tanks late Thursday for the first time. By the time he had located the source, it was too late to do anything for the day.

So he showed up early yesterday at the brewery and protested. But most of the stock was gone by them. Some of the rest of it was sent down storm, instead of sanitary, sewer lines.

Results won't be as good in the filtration tanks at the sewage plant, Mr. Norgaard said, but the city will get by all right until the sludge tank is back in order.

The beer, he said, promotes the growth of fungi, which in a way are natural enemies of the bacteria. To kill this growth a thorough aeration, or perhaps a chlorination treatment, will be necessary.

Men sweated in the basement of the brewery plant as the beer, once meant to cool human throats and comfort those with sweating brows went down the drain.

It was a sad thing to watch, in a way, the workers said, but then the beer was sour. It had been sitting in the plant since January, at least, when the brewery shut down, and some of it was older. The revenue had not been paid.

When it was over, and the curbs on Ludington street were marked with foam from the stream that had overflowed the sewer openings, Paul Worthington, and his helper, Melvin Johnson, went across the street to a little restaurant. "Give us some beer," they said.

C. S. Alexander was in charge for the internal revenue department. The brewery's license had expired and since the beer was unsaleable, the license was not to be renewed for this stock. Disposal had to be certified for the revenue department.

Steel Head

Irving S. Olds

The man who succeeds Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as chairman of the board of directors of U. S. Steel with Stettinius' appointment to the National Defense commission, is himself an authority on defense problems.

He is 57-year-old Irving S. Olds of New York, a native of Erie, Pa. From 1917-19 Olds served as counsel for the purchasing Department of the British War Mission to the United States and in 1918 was a special assistant in the U. S. War Department.

Upon graduation from Yale and Harvard, Olds was secretary to Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, 1910-11. He then became associated with a New York law firm where he has since practiced corporate law.

He has been director and member of the finance committee of U. S. Steel since 1936.

Michigan Does Not Use Wire Tapping, Senate Group Told

Lansing, June 7 (AP)—A report to a U. S. senate investigating committee by the attorney general's office said today the state police do not tap telephone wires to obtain evidence, and that there was no record in Lansing that wire tapping was employed by local law enforcing officials.

The report, signed by Attorney General Thomas Read, added, however, that there was evidence wire tapping "has been used by the federal department of justice within our state."

Assistant Attorney General Leroy Bibby said federal court records told of evidence so gathered by federal detectives in prohibition and other cases.

The attorney general prepared the letter in response to written queries submitted to him by the investigators. It said there was no Michigan law to interfere with wire tapping or the use of dictographs and other similar paraphernalia.

Read said he knew of no instance where such materials had been used to obtain information relating to the activities of state or local officials.

Grand Rapids Widow Sentenced In Poison Death Of Husband

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 7 (AP)—Mrs. Carrie Bennett, 49-year-old widow, was sentenced to from six to 15 years in prison today a few minutes after she halted her trial to plead guilty to a manslaughter charge in connection with the poison death of her husband, William Bennett, 67, in 1935.

Originally Mrs. Bennett was charged with both manslaughter and second degree murder, the state claiming she had furnished her incurably ill husband with poison with which to end his life.

HITLER'S MEN THROWN INTO FACE OF GUNS

These points in the west were reported holding fast.

A decisive trend still was not evident. The Germans still had the strength to attack powerfully. The French, inspired by defense of their own soil, fought back as hard as ever.

Nations Watch Italy

Nazi forces had scored two advances, one of about 7¼ miles from the Somme to the Bresle on the west wing, and another of about six miles from the Ailette to the Aisne on the east wing.

The center of the Weygand line still was holding fast.

Italy, in a move that might mean she was on the verge of war, was reported to have cancelled sailings of Italian ships, including that of the liner Rex, due to leave for the United States June 12.

The Italian line continued to accept reservations for the scheduled departure of the Rex.

There was no confirmation for reports that Italian merchantmen had been advised to hurry to neutral harbors.

It was considered significant that the German high command made no specific claims to advances, but in unusually terse communiques to the German people, spoke of "progress on schedule" despite "stiff resistance" from more and heavier guns than they had expected in the Weygand line.

Oil Reserve Increased

The army called the line "Weygand's surprise," and declared it had been "broken on a front 62 miles wide."

The Nazi press and other informed sources spread various reports of Germany's strength and favorable position in the war. The German oil reserve, it was said, has risen from a six-month supply at the beginning of the war to an eight-month supply now.

In Germany, Italy's plunge into the war was explained to be contingent on destruction of the French air force and a siege of Paris which would pull away French manpower from drives France might make at Italian possessions.

While British war industries ran at top speed to supply equipment and munitions for new divisions and to replace that lost in Flanders, the royal air force vigorously entered the Battle of the Somme to hold up Britain's share of the fight. The British air ministry declared its fliers in constant action over the Somme front and in Germany.

Egypt With Britain

Egypt, busy with preparations for war in the Mediterranean, apparently was not impressed by a newspaper report that Italy had promised Egyptian frontiers would be respected if Italy goes to war against the allies. Premier Aly Maher Pasha countered the report with the assertion that Egypt was doing all possible to guard against a surprise attack and that the nation would fulfill every obligation under her alliance with Great Britain.

The United States, busy with its own great defense program, made a preliminary move toward possible production of warplanes on a vast scale.

A war department announcement said a pursuit plane of the latest type would be flown to Detroit where an engineer would explain it to Henry Ford's engineers. Recently Ford said that if he were free of government interference he could produce 1,000 planes of a standard type daily, within six months.

President Roosevelt applauded a newspaper editorial urging compulsory military training in the United States and asked Congress for authority to turn old army guns back to manufacturers, a move that would get them quickly into the hands of British and French soldiers.

(By The Associated Press)

London, June 8 (Saturday)—German air raiders, in the third successive night of attacks on England, roared over eight counties late last night, one circling low to machine-gun the houses of a southeast port town while another crashed and burned in east Suffolk.

The ministry of home security reported: "Two of the bomber's crew were killed and one injured. One house was badly damaged, and slight damage was caused to other buildings. No civilian casualties have been reported."

Raiders Fly Low

The machine-gunning plane which struck at the unidentified coast town dropped no bombs, but circled repeatedly to earth. Residents escaped injury by huddling for 45 minutes in shelters.

The alarms were in Cambridge, Norfolk, Essex, Suffolk, Kent, Northumberland, Durham and Yorkshire.

In one southeast coast county, the roar of planes was heard directly overhead, punctured by repeated bursts of gunfire.

The planes first flew to the south, then returned, heading inward toward the west. Then they wheeled back again, pursued by the continual clatters of machine-gun fire.

Britain's own air force, meanwhile, was bearing the weight of Britain's support for her French ally until new land divisions can be formed and equipped for the conflict on the Somme.

The air ministry reported almost continuous air assaults since yesterday on German communications and many other targets to hamper the Nazi drive into France.

Military sources viewed the allied status on French battlefields as "pretty good" but wondered whether the main attack of the Germans yet had been made.

The loss of 10 British planes was acknowledged, but the ministry declared 15 German aircraft had been shot down. British bombing targets such as railways, bridges, troops, gun emplacements, tank columns and oil refineries were "systematically and repeatedly bombed" behind the Somme front, in France and in northwest Germany.

The British reported they dropped 70 bombs on a big refinery south of Hamburg, setting great fires there and also on a large oil storage plant near Delmenhorst.

On the home front the British protection forces set themselves for German air raids. Sir John Anderson, minister of home defense, issued a call for thousands of civil workers and in a nation-wide broadcast asked everyone in Britain to "learn the rules of air raid precautions."

To guard against a night invasion by sea the admiralty established a 3-mile curfew zone all around the United Kingdom. All ships were forbidden to enter that zone between sunset and sunrise except in organized convoys.

Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft, declared that Britain had made giant strides in plane production in her effort to offset Nazi numerical superiority in the air.

Car Kills Brother, Sleeping In Lane

Means, Mich., June 7 (AP)—Louis Schultz, 29, suffered fatal injuries yesterday when he was run over by an automobile driven by his brother, Ernest, 25, as he lay asleep in a lane on the Schultz family farm.

CARDWELL WITH LIONS

Detroit, June 7, (AP)—Lloyd Cardwell, veteran halfback, today signed a contract to play again next fall with the Detroit Lions of the National professional football league. Cardwell, who will be playing his fourth season with the Lions, was a star at University of Nebraska before joining the pro ranks.

Los Angeles Feels Strong Earthquake

Los Angeles, June 7 (AP)—An earthquake strong enough to break dishes and jar pictures from walls struck Inglewood, Hawthorne and southern Los Angeles at 4:40 p. m. (7:40 p. m. EST) today. Damage was reported as slight.

The shock also was felt distinctly in Los Angeles' western residential area.

New record for length of passenger trains in England was made recently when the London and Northeastern Railway ran a 26-coach train.
